Dr. F. E. Clark, instructor in Chemistry, was born in New Martinsville, W. Va. B. S., West Virginia University; Ph. D., in Chemistry and Geology, Johns Hopkins University; instructor in Chemistry, West Virginia University.

Ernst E. Calkins, instructor in English. B. L., University of Wisconsin; scholarship in English and German, University of Wisconsin; taught English and German in Kewaune High School: instructor in English Michigan Military Academy.

C. P. Linville, instructor in Metallurgy. B. S., Ohio State University; M. A., Ohio State University; fellow in Chemistry, Ohio State University; National Steele Co., Mingo Junction; Globe Iron Co., Jackson, Ohio.

Dr. H. H. Stecker, B. Sc., University of Wisconsin, 1893; M. Sc., 1894; Ph. D., 1897; special honors in Mathematics at graduation, 1893; fellow in Pure Mathematics, University of Wisconsin, 1893-1895; honorary fellow, 1896; elected member of the American Mathematical Society, 1893; member of the Deutsche Mathematische-Vereinigung, 1901; member of the Gottingen Mathematische Gesellschaft, 1900; member of the Sigma XI Honorary Society; instructor in Mathematics, University of Wisconsin, 1890-1895; instructor in Mathematics, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., 1897-1900; studied in Berlin and Gottingen, Germany, 1900-1901; instructor in Mathematics, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., since 1901.

E. H. B. Humphreys, assistant in Mathematics. A. B., Harvard; will receive the degree A. M. next year; work is already completed.

Robt. E. Elizinga takes charge of the blacksmith shop and foundry. He was born in the Netherlands, and educated in Amsterdam. Worked for Transvaal and Orange Free State governments before the war; blacksmith and engineer at the Johannesburg gold mines and the Kimberly diamond mines, South Africa; Webster Mfg. Co., Chicago; Palmer & Ray, type founders; the Link Belt Machinery Co., Chicago; W. D. Forbes & Co., Hoboken; F. A. Verdon Co., Hoboken; Joseph Menchen, electrician, New York. Mr. Elizinga has travelled extensively in this country,