

as a revelation to many who had not known before the actual conditions of living among the poor in our great cities. Mr. Riis is the author of other important works: "The Children of the Poor," "Out of Mulberry Street," "The Battle with the Slums," "The Making of an American."

Prof. Pattee's Book.

The American Historical Review for July contains this notice of Professor Pattee's second volume of Frenau's poems:

"The second volume of The Poems of Philip Frenau, Poet of the American Revolution, has been issued with the imprint of the Princeton University Library (Princeton, 1903, pp. x, 407.) The material is in some ways more deserving of a notice in a historical periodical than in a literary journal; nearly the whole volume is taken up with poems of an occasional character, embodying in rhyme or in studied periods, the thought and passion of the time. For the student of the Revolution, therefore, the book is of importance, and American scholars should be grateful to Mr. Pattee for the care with which these pieces have been brought together."

The Historical Review for October contains the first instalment of the "President Pierce Papers" 1852-1862 edited and contributed to the Review by P. O. Ray.
