LOCALS

What did you flunk?

Exams are past. Would that they were passed!

J. L. Spicer visited at his home in Harrisburg, over Sunday.

R. W. Wharton ex-'04 of Lewis-town was married recently in Altoona.

The members of the Stroudsburg Club enjoyed a "feed" at Harrison's restaurant last Friday evening.

The Lewisburg, Tyrone, and Bald Eagle Valley Railroad Co. carries extra cars on all trains this week to handle the heavy traffic out of Lemont!

A large number of students partook of the chicken and waffle supper given last Friday evening at Sheasley's restaurant as a benefit for the Alpha Fire Co. of State College.

The Sophomore class met Monday evening and decided to attend no more history classes until there was a change in the instruction force in that subject. The outcome is awaited with interest.

E. C. Williams, a member of the Junior class, left college last week to take a position at Washington, D. C. in connection with the work of the Panama Canal. He expects to be transferred later to the Isthmus and to be engaged in the active work of construction.

A few Juniors aroused considerable amusement on Wednesday morning of last week by appearing in chapel with suit cases and bread baskets full of reference books for the exam in Machine Design. We never knew before that this subject was so "heavy."

A meeting of the Alumni Committee on Arrangements for the Semi-Centennial was to have occurred last Friday but had to be postponed to February 10, when there will be a joint meeting of this committee with a committee of the Faculty for the same purpose.

Prof. Foster is starting a class in Spanish. All students above the Freshman class are privileged to join.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

On Monday evening the Association held another one of its social evenings in room 529, which was largely attended. The chief amusement feature of the evening was a phonograph concert.

Mr. A. M. Sayford who has been making a special tour among some of the Pennsylvania colleges will be at State, Tuesday, Feb. 19th. He will speak in the College Chapel in the evening. Mr. John R. Mott says of him: "In my judgment Mr. S. M. Sayford is one of the most acceptable and effective speakers to college men whom I know in any country. He has probably addressed more and larger audiences of students throughout all parts of the United States than any other speaker. He has especially appealed to the strongest men in the colleges regardless of their views upon different moral and religious questions. Certain of his addresses have made a profound impression upon college audiences."

The Chicago Lady Entertainers.

On last Saturday evening the Chicago Lady Entertainers gave a concert, consisting of quartets, solos, duets, and selected readings, in the Old Chapel. The large audience present was not disappointed, for the entertainment was very pleasing in every way, and encores were called for repeatedly, so that the program was more than doubled. It is difficult where so much talent was displayed to name the best, but it may well be said that as a reader and impessorator Mrs. Estella M. Clark is rarely surpassed. All combined however to bring the entertainment to a high degree of perfection.
