Dining Room Opened.

With the opening of the spring session, W. H. Housel threw open the dining room of McAllister Hall to the students. Board is furnished at the rate of $3.25 per week in advance. Meal tickets good for twenty-one meals to be taken any time may be procured for $6.50, although undoubtedly the better way is to become a regular boarder.

The dining room is large enough to seat 840 people comfortably, so there will be no crowding, at least this year. Arrangements can be made whereby fraternities or clubs may have separate tables and service, and this privilege will probably be secured to some extent.

Waiters from the student body will be employed as the number of boarders increases, and there will probably be several openings for industrious students next year.

Every thing about the dining-room and kitchen is arranged in convenient and orderly fashion; and quick service and good treatment are assured to all.

College Opened.

College opened yesterday morning at 11.00 with chapel exercises in the Auditorium. A large percentage of the students have returned; those who remained here during the vacation are tired of loafing; and every one is, of course, resolved (?) to "brace up" for the spring work. Notwithstanding the enervating influence of the balmy days and the twilight of the evenings it must be evident that there is work to be done, and the time is not far distant when that work will count for success, in the June examinations. The last quarter in the annual race has been begun. Some have dropped by the wayside; others have obtained their "second-wind" and are making good. The spring term is the most enjoyable one of the year. Let's "get into the game," and round-out a successful college year.

Musical Clubs.

The newly organized Glee and Mandolin Clubs will hold their first entertainment next Saturday evening in the college auditorium. This is States first attempt in this line and in order to be a success should receive the support of all the students.

The clubs will perform at Johnstown on Wednesday, April 12. Dates are also under negotiation with Windber and Altoona.

Ab-sent.—"How long did the class-meeting last?"

Junior.—"Two cigarettes."

Base Ball.

The Varsity baseball nine left Thursday morning on its Southern trip, and during the week, which State's students spent at their homes enjoying their spring vacation, the White and Blue's ball team was down in the sunny South land doing its level best to dig out a few victories for "Old State." This Southern journey is the first venture of the sort State has ever taken, although away back in 1894 the Varsity nine, with "Charlie" Atherton as captain, invaded Dixieland, and succeeded in defeating Washington and Lee College, 10 to 6, while they lost to University of Virginia, 14 to 4, and Virginia Military Institute 6 to 5. This trip, however, was taken during the month of May, and leaves the honor of the first real training expedition to the team of 1905 under Captain "Harmony" Ray.

Emmitsburg, Md., March 31.

In the opening game of the season here to-day Mount St. Mary's College was defeated by Penn State in a cleanly contested game. McGee was on the firing line for State, and pitched nervy, cool-headed ball from the start, while Connolly also twirled a steady game. In the first inning with three on bases for St. Mary's and nobody out, Connolly drove a terrific liner between right and center; Moorhead by a beautiful dash managed to capture the ball, and shot it to second, from whence Cree threw to Ray, completing a magnificent triple play! After this, Mount St. Mary's fought hard, but seemed rather outclassed by the State nine.
