COLLEGE ORBIT.

Princeton and Chicago Universities are taking steps toward reorganization on the plan of Oxford and Cambridge. It is thought that by having a number of separate colleges under one management, the advantages of a small college will be combined with those of the great university.

In an address before the Alumni of Stevens Institute, Andrew Carnegie said that sport was too largely taking the place of study at the big colleges; that he thought a young man receives a better education at the smaller college than at the larger one; and that he intends to transfer his attention, to a great extent, from libraries to the small colleges.

The honor system has been adopted at Swarthmore.

Syracuse University is now out of debt for the first time in thirty years, as a result of a recent bequest of $50,000.
