The Pharsonians.

The Pharsonians held forth in the Armory Saturday evening and gave the commencement season a lively start, with Saunders and Whitworth, Childs and Waller on the ends, Pop Golden as interlocutor, Dutch Ludwig with his characteristic Dutch monologue, the program kept the audience busy continually.

The street-car scene was in reality a howling success. To specialize on any particular parts of the program would be impossible. The whole thing was good and keeps the Pharsonians full up to the standard established by former productions. Whitworth and Ludwig are both alumni of the class of 1904 and in previous years were stars in the parts they re-assumed Saturday evening.
