the boy.

We regret to believe that some professors and teachers have reversed all this, and take special credit to themselves in flunking a student, and the larger the number of their pupils that fail furnishes proof of their superior scholarship and the very high standards of accuracy they exact of all students. Some have even been known to exult in the very large number of their pupils whom they reported as flunkers and even to tell a student that they would make him flunk. Such a teacher is unfit for his place, and it is prima facie evidence of such unfitness if he permits five per cent of his students to fail.

Captain Thomas J. Throp, of Columbia's football team, has been dropped from the university rolls on account of low scholarship.
