

Thespians, Saturday Night.

Next Saturday evening, April 21, the Thespians will present in the Auditorium, their farce comedy in three acts, "Facing the Music." This play has won international repute by a one year's run in Druray Lane Theatre, London. The boys, under the able trainership of Mrs. J. Hurley, of Buffalo, have been practicing faithfully for the last three weeks, there being two long rehearsals each day. Those who have been present at any of the rehearsals remark that this play is unusually well suited for such an organization as the Thespians.

In addition, the musical part of the program will be furnished by the college orchestra which has been putting in much time of late at practicing. The college quartette will render several selections between the acts.

The performance will start at a quarter after eight. Tickets are thirty-five and fifty cents, chart opens to-day at the Business office. At the Commencement performance the prices will be fifty per cent higher.

There is no reason why a large crowd should not turn out to support this organization as the members have worked consistently and are deserving of much praise.

Library Notes.

The Daily Era, Lancaster, has been added to the Library, a gift of the Publishers.

The Compilers, Miss Atherton and Mr. Wycoff merit the thanks of the Library for a copy of The Pennsylvania State Song Book.

The Illuminating Engineer, a new magazine devoted to the Science and Art of Illumination is on file in the Library. It is a bright, well-illustrated monthly, and comes as a gift from the Publisher.

The two dailies in French and German are now regularly filed in the Library, the Courier des Etats Unis and the Staats Zeitung. These furnish an excellent practicum in rapid reading for students of these two modern languages, and a wholesome practice for all to keep alive a reading knowledge of the every day vocabulary.

Professor John F. Shields, of the class of 1892 and an Instructor in Mathematics at State for a year or more, has donated through Professor Willard, thirty-two volumes of Mathematical Texts.

A large number of students attended church in Bellefonte on Easter.

Duff, '05, was at the College for a short visit this week.
