Directory

There seems to be some misunderstanding about the College Directory in Room 273 Main. This directory has not as yet been gotten cut in book form, and is merely a part of the Information Bureau conducted in 273. It is not infallible, as it contains the addresses under which the students entered, and there have been many changes made since then. Any information regarding such changes will be appreciated. The directory can be kept accurate only through the co-operation of the students.

COLLEGE ORBIT.

Princeton reports a scarcity of foot ball candidates, owing to the new rules prohibiting Freshmen from playing on the regular teams.

Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, of the University of Pennsylvania, was recently elected superintendent of the Philadelphia Schools.

The Department of Civil Engineering at Lehigh University has adopted the new style spelling.

Tobacco users and theatre-goers among the college students of Syracuse University must pay full tuition, according to an edict issued by Chancellor Day, the opening day of the term.

The Carnegie Institution at Washington has just issued a sumptuously printed and illustrated quarto, entitled "American Fossil Cycads" by George R. Wieland, State '93, of the Paleontological Museum of Yale University. This is by far the most important and creditable piece of work ever done by any graduate in natural history lines. It is, perhaps, not too much to say that Dr Wieland's steady and persistent course through the Pennsylvania State College starting with the then B, preparatory class, has had something to do with the international reputation which, in the short period of thirteen years he has acquired.
