Fish of Pennsylvania.

At the regular meeting of the Natural History Club held Wednesday, October 24, Prof. W. R. McConnell gave a very interesting talk on the fish of Pennsylvania. During the summer of 1905 Prof. McConnell made a study of the fish of the state for the State Fish Commission, and he discovered many of the finny tribe that were not formerly known to live in Pennsylvania. According to his classification, there are 165 species in Pennsylvania, belonging to 29 different families. The recounting of the peculiar habits and characteristics of the fish made the talk very entertaining as well as instructive.
