The Bureau of Soils at Washington has assigned, for certain investigations connected with the experiments conducted for so many years at the Experiment Station, Messrs. C. L. Cook and F. R. Reid.

It has also been determined by the Bureau of Soils at Washington that a soil survey of Centre county shall be made about May 1st, by a special corps of workers detailed by the Department of Agriculture, who will work independently of the College, but the results of whose work will be of immense importance in helping to interpret the work which the Station has already done in field experiments.

Active efforts are now being made to organize the Bureau of Forestry, so that students who are looking to a course in this department may have their work rounded up in such a way as to enter upon a full and well defined course in advanced work next September.

From this meagre outline of what has been done on "Agricultural Hill," it will be seen that there are life, energy and progress in abundance, which give assurance of great success in the future.
