

Camera Club.

That one of State's newest organizations, the Camera club, is to become a permanent and flourishing one was demonstrated by the election of seven new members. That it is to be interesting and instructive to the camera fiends of the college may be inferred from the fact that two valuable talks were given by members at the conclusion of the business session. W. E. Ruder spoke on "The Evolution of the Dry Plate," and W. C. Powick discussed "The Theory of Developing." As a further help to members it is proposed to maintain a question box.

One very commendable action was taken which other clubs might profitably follow. Eight journals relating to photography were subscribed for and ordered to be placed in the college library. In this way they are placed at the disposal of everyone in college and will prove of value and interest to all those who are engaged in photographic work, either amateur or professional.

The dramatic club of Washington and Jefferson recently presented the farce comedy "Facing the Music" This play met with great success when handled by our own club last June.
