

David Garrick.

Those who attended the presentation of "David Garrick" by Leland Powers last Saturday evening went away entirely satisfied. The full appreciation of the good-sized audience made itself known unmistakably by the applause which so frequently greeted Mr. Powers.

The rapid change of voice and manner, from one character to another, and the clear and characteristic enunciation of every word made the impersonation appear all the more like a real play, bringing out in a masterful way the varied peculiarities and personalities of all the characters. All the persons represented in the action stood out as real persons of everyday life, and the simplicity and effectiveness of the impersonation were splendid. The commercialism of old Ingot and his friends, the ability of Garrick as an actor, the emptiness of the English dandy were all portrayed most effectively.

Mr. Powers seemed utterly unconscious of his medium, and gave a true representation without any attempt at melodramatic effect. The secret of Mr. Powers success is that he knows just what his audience wants and that he gives it to them in an interesting manner.

Inter-collegiate Debate.

The Debating Club has chosen the question for the debate with Dickinson which will decide the championship of the league. As Dickinson has the choice of sides, it will not be known for some time which side we must defend. The debate will take place on the last Friday in April on neutral ground, which has not yet been determined upon. The question is: Resolved, that corporations engaged in foreign or interstate commerce should be licensed by the Federal government and be subject to its control and supervision.

Time to be thinking of lacrosse.

COLLEGE NOTES.

The Pennsylvania State College Dairy Students Association was organized last week by the members of the short creamery course. Classes having previously attended the college and those which will in the future take this course will be eligible to membership in the association.

All sophomores and juniors who have not handed in a list of their vacant hours are requested to do so at once at Main 340°.

Among the old students in town last week were G. W. Hargest and "Cal." Moorhead, both of the class of 1908, and C. R. Thompson, 1905.

Professor Watson entertained the Senior Farmers last Thursday evening.

A. Digby, '09 is threatened with appendicitis and has returned home.

Life in the Channel Islands.

At the meeting of the Agricultural Society held last Tuesday evening Prof. Watson gave an interesting description of the group of islands just off the coast of France commonly known as the Channel Islands. It will be remembered that most of the common breeds of cattle originated there. Prof. Watson spent a summer in the islands several years ago, and in his talk he presented in an interesting way many of the facts in regard to climate and the conditions of cattle-raising in the islands.

The Berzelius Club.

At a special meeting of the Berzelius Chemical Society held Wednesday evening, February 20, Dr. Pond discussed with the members the chemistry trip which is to begin the latter part of March. This trip is to include New York, Philadelphia and points of interest in New Jersey.
