

State at General Electric Co.

On Thursday of last week, Superintendent A. L. Rohrer, of the General Electric company of Schenectady, made his annual visit to State College in quest of men for the testing department of the works.

In the course of his remarks to the senior electricals, Mr. Rohrer outlined briefly the work of the various departments of the company. The work of the five hundred student engineers of the testing department was of particular interest to the men, especially to those contemplating that line of employment after graduation. Upon completion of two years' work in this department, the opportunities for advancement are of the best. The men with this experience have little difficulty in obtaining responsible positions, either in the other departments of the works or with other electrical manufacturing concerns.

Mr. Rohrer, speaking of those employed as student engineers, said that the men who prove of most value are those who have the power to think and apply principles rather than those equipped with practical knowledge. This opinion, coming from an employer of 15,000 men should have great weight.

State is well represented at Schenectady. Ten of her electrical engineering graduates are enrolled as student engineers and nearly thirty more are employed in the various departments of the works. That they are giving the best satisfaction, we have ample proof in Mr. Rohrer's annual visit in search of new men.

Library Notes.

Among the periodicals to be found on the Library list this year, are the following:

Colliers' Weekly, The Craftsman, Fliegende Blatter, The International Studio, Journal of English and Germanic Philology, Poet Lore, Revue des Deux Mondes, The Saturday Evening Post.

The Library has received from Dr. A. S. McAllister, '98, a copy of his new book, "Alternating Current Machinery." A competent authority pronounces this the best book on the subject.

Dr. B. E. Fernow donates to the Library, The Forestry Review, a quarterly journal of which he is editor.

The coal dealer says: "As we journey through life we must live by the weigh." Miners take notice.
