

Pennsylvania Day Ceremonies.

Preliminary plans have been completed for the observance of Pennsylvania Day on Nov. 22. Governor Stuart has accepted an invitation to be present and will arrive on a special train from Bellefonte at 9.30 a. m. He will be met at the train by the cadet regiment and escorted to the Auditorium, where dedicatory exercises for the new Agricultural Building will be held at 10 o'clock. Short addresses will be delivered by Governor Stuart, General Beaver, Dr. Hunt, and Nathan C. Shaeffer, Superintendent of Public Instruction. William H. Jordan, Director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, will deliver the principal address on "The Education of the Farmer."

The Governor will review the Cadet regiment at 2 p. m., after which the new buildings will be open to inspection. At this time a reception will be tendered by the Trustees, Faculty and students to the Governor and other invited guests in the assembly room of the new building.

The Agricultural Society will hold a meeting in the assembly room at 8 p. m. to which the public is invited.

Dr. Ponds Speaks.

On Friday evening of last week Dr. Pond spoke to the Berzelius Chemical Society on the subject of "Blood Determination." The various means of distinguishing human blood from that of animals were illustrated, and several tests were described by which blood stains may be proved to be such even though the stains were made months or years previously. The matter of giving expert testimony, especially in criminal cases, was taken up at length. By means of the microscope and slides Dr. Pond illustrated all of the points. The talk proved to be intensely interesting.
