The grading of the field lying to the west of the temporary dormitory, so as to make it a general play ground.

After September, 1909, a student upon being assigned two scholarships must choose between them, retaining the compensation of the one and being known as an "Honorary Scholar" of the other.

That the wood lot adjoining the new athletic field on the west be opened for experimentation to the Forestry Department

The erection of a coal shed adjacent to the boiler house of the college heating plant was ordered.

A Visiting Board of Engineers, to consist of men prominently engaged in various engineering enterprises of the state, was authorized to be created.

The purchase of a new unit for the electric lighting plant was ordered.

The room in the Carnegie Library designated as the "Map Room" was set aside for the use of the Alumni Association and the Graduate Athletic Committee.

Trustee Actions.

At the June meeting of the Board of Trustees of the College the following important actions were taken:

The proposition to unite The Pennsylvania State College and the Medico-Chirurgical College of Philadelphia was considered in full and was finally referred to a committee of five to investigate fully and report at the meeting of the Board in January next.

An Advisory Board of Engineering was created to consist of the heads of certain departments of the College who would be from their positions fitted to give advice concerning the buildings and grounds of the College.

A Department of Physical Education was created, to be joined for the present with the Department of Military Instruction under the immediate direction of the President.

A movement was set on foot to secure a competent man who shall become the architect of the College.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. H. V. White, a Trustee, who had served as Secretary of the Board since the death of President Atherton.

Mr. Crockett was called to Oswego, N. Y., on Tuesday because of the serious illness of his mother.

The annual wrestling match will probably be held on Wednesday evening of next week. As was noted last week, five men will represent each class, and the fight should be a hard one.
