

forestry work for the national government. Recently he has been in charge of the reclamation work in the west and his lecture will describe what is being done to redeem the arid lands in the western states, and will be illustrated with lantern slides. Mr. Hall is a public speaker of no little note, and this first lecture promises to open the season very acceptably. No admission fee will be charged.

Juniors Partially Exempt from Inspection.

The petition from the juniors rooming in the college dormitories for exemption from military inspection on Sunday morning was referred by the faculty council of administration to the president of the college, who replied to the committee as follows:

"Two elements enter into the question. First, that we must preserve some prerogatives solely for the senior class, as is done in every college. Second, that there is a line of demarcation between the sophomore and junior classes in that the former is subject to military duty and the latter not. In view of these two opposing factors, I suggest a compromise, namely, I will advise the commandant of cadets to excuse from military inspection on Sunday morning all members of the junior class residing in the dormitories, this rule to be in effect during the second semester only of each junior year. This will preserve a
