was previously charged for cloth, that is, $2.00. They will be here by June 1, in ample time before commencement, and every student should give his subscription as soon as possible to the managers in order to get the proper estimate of the number of copies required.

Prospects for the Washington Trip.

Captain Hay has been at work in the matter of having State represented by the cadet regiment at the presidential inaugural on March 4, but as yet nothing definite can be said as to the prospects for the trip. The question hinges on the expenses of the trip, and the only practical way of paying these expenses will be by an appropriation by the Legislature. Adjutant General Stewart expresses himself favorably, but can do little, since he is obliged to ask the Legislature for funds to take the National Guard.

The proposition will be taken up with the Legislature as soon as possible, but it is not likely that it will be settled before the middle of February. If the state decides at that time to bear the expenses of the trip, some strenuous work will be necessary to get the regiment into shape, especially since outdoor drill will be almost impossible.

Short Course Men Organize.

The short course agricultural students met in the assembly room on the evening of Dec. 23 and organized a society. The following officers were elected: president, M. J. Egan; vice president, W. A. Elders; secretary, F. L. McClure; assistant secretary, J. R. Howe; treasurer, R. C. Shaw; marshal, H. E. Scruggs.

The society meets every Wednesday evening in the assembly room, the programs being literary and along the line of agriculture. Agricultural students are invited.

The 1910 La Vie.

The contract for the printing of the 1910 La Vie was awarded last week to the Grit Publishing company, of Williamsport, Pa., and the entire production of the book is thus placed in their hands. They also have the contract for engraving. This large concern was the lowest bidder among many competitors and is well able to turn out the book which the La Vie Board aims to produce.

The contract calls for the printing of the book on India Tint paper in a double-tone brown ink which will give a very rich appearance to the pages. Color plates, and original and new arrangements of the different sections will help to relieve the monotony which so often occurs in these books.

There will be 350 pages exclusive of advertising, covering every phase of student life at State. In connection with the dedication of the book to President Sparks there will be a full page photogravure, and a complete biography of his life. The Junior class section will be treated in two colors and the write-ups are in a new style which makes interesting reading. Every Junior will have a special cartoon.

The picture of the entire student body taken recently turned out to be excellent and will be one of the pictorial features. One section of the book will consist of nothing but photographs of the college and college life and arranged by the artists in an attractive manner. The jokes and chronicles will be made as interesting as possible and will surely be spicy reading.

The cover will be of ooze-sheep leather, brown, and with edges overhanging one-half inch on three sides with the name of the book hot-pressed. Every copy will be in this leather and will cost the same as
