The Freshmen Won!

Penn State has seen some good interclass basket-ball games, but the one played last Saturday in the Armory is likely to remain long in the minds of those who witnessed it as probably the most interesting and exciting ever played. Like all its predecessors the recent Sophomore-Freshman game was filled with rough, hard playing, but a bright feature was the work of referee Crabtree, who saw nearly all the fouls and "called them". Forty infractions of the rules were brought to light; eighteen of these were called on the freshmen and twenty-two on the sophomores. Captain James of '12 took advantage of this by making sixteen foul goals, which added to his field goal, virtually won the game for the first-year five.

The freshmen were always in the lead during the first half, which ended 12 to 7 in their favor. Only nine field goals were made during the entire game and these were almost evenly divided between the two contestants. In the second half 1912 kept her lead well on toward the end when the score was, "Freshmen 20—Sophomores 14," with less than five minutes to play. Then the contingent on the east side of the Armory had a good opportunity to make some noise, for McIntyre made two foul goals, and both Amidon and Yeckley caged pretty ones from the field, making the score a tie at twenty.

Pandemonium reigned as Armsby made the field goal which really clinched the game for the freshmen, yet the second year students still shouted lustily and confidently as they really believed their team would win, though less than a minute remained to play. Several fouls were called and James accurately shot two more, bringing his total of points up to eighteen. Then time was called and the two teams, winner and loser alike, were borne off the floor.

After the game a joint banquet was held at McAllister Hall. The captains, managers, referee, class presidents and toastmaster McKee all made appropriate remarks. While the Sophomores did not attempt to conceal their chagrin at losing to the sturdy wearers of the green caps, they generously conceded that the "better team" had won. Referee Crabtree was given due credit for his attempt to make the game as clean as possible. With little trace of class spirit left, but with the all-prevailing brotherly spirit of Penn State men in strong evidence, the close of the banquet made up the final scene of this year's Sophomore Freshman struggle, yet that game will be commo- talk on the campus for weeks to come.
