

New Book by Prof. Ray.

"The Repeal of the Missouri Compromise, Its Origin and Authorship" is the title of a handsome volume by Prof. P. Orman Ray that has just been published by The Arthur H. Clark Company, Cleveland, Ohio. It is a history of the causes which produced the Repeal of the Missouri Compromise and is written almost entirely upon new evidence.

Prof. Ray denies that Stephen A. Douglas originated the Kansas-Nebraska Bill of 1854, and brings abundant evidence to prove that David R. Atchison of Missouri was the real originator of the Repeal. Written from this new point of view, the work marks an important departure in the treatment of ante-bellum politics. It shows that a careful study of state politics is necessary for the solution of many national problems.

The work is the result of years of exhaustive research and it brings together a vast amount of evidence heretofore scarcely known to exist. It contains a very extensive classified bibliography, footnote references to verify the important statements of fact, and a perfect analytical index. It is a scholarly work in every detail.

The Christian Association Meetings.

The talks by William DeWitt of Yale on Sunday and Monday proved to be intensely interesting and practical. In addition to the senior class meeting on Sunday morning and the all college meeting in the evening, he visited practically every fraternity in the college and many of the group Bible classes.
