

A New Opening for College Men.

The Pennsylvania Railroad recently established an apprentice system of training men for signal engineers, which promises to offer elegant openings for college men. The demand for greater safety and facility in operation has resulted in an extraordinary growth in the number of block signal installations, and consequently in a greater demand for experienced and capable men in that line.

To train engineers, capable of directing and planning signal installations, the company has appointed six apprentices, three of whom are graduates of Penn State: J. G. J. Stoll, '08, G. H. Wion '08, and C. S. Snavely '08. These apprentices will each serve a three years' course; the first, on the mechanical end with the repair and construction gangs; the second, in the office of the supervisor of signals; and the third on outside work on electric and electro-pneumatic appliances.

The next place open to these men is the position of assistant signal inspector in the signal engineer's office. After attaining this they will be in line for appointment as assistant supervisor of signals, inspector, assistant signal engineer, and signal engineer.

W. R. Miles '03, visited the College for a few days last week. He is connected with the electrical department of the American Smelting and Refining company at Helena Montana.

G. E. Ogilvie '10, president of the Y. M. C. A., attended the Presidents' conference of the Pennsylvania Christian Associations at Franklin and Marshall last week.

The Best Argument we can offer for the character of our Clothes is the Clothes themselves. Every man who has worn them will acknowledge their superiority—their wonderful value and their undoubted merit. We show a remarkable diversity in the number of models and fabrics we display.
