

nch or so on the captain's kick saved the Indians from a defeat which should have rightfully been theirs.

Our eleven gained two yards to every one the Redskins made in the second half, on real football, but the advantage thus gained was overcome by the heavy penalties inflicted on the White-and-Blue players. The most intense feeling existed between the teams and roughness was sure to crop out, but the Indians were nearly always able to get away with the stealthiest kind of dirty tactics without detection. In this line the decisions of the officials seemed to be like the Wilkes-Barre oysters, "Raw, raw, raw".

With the score 6 to 5 against us, the State spirit, among players and rooters alike, began to do things and the Indian defense was ripped to pieces with the result that the ball was soon on the Indian's thirty-yard line in our possession. On the third down Vorhis made a magnificent field goal on a drop-kick that made the ever-loyal State stand wild with delight and the score 8 to 6 in our favor.

Penalties twice allowed the Redmen to get close enough to our goal line for Hauser to try goals from placement. The second of these attempts was well aimed but fell short, just under the bars. Vorhis caught the ball and touched it down behind our own line with the idea that it was a touchback, but the officials declared the aggressive captain had one foot on the playing field when he caught the ball and declared a safety for the Indians, although the nearest Indian tackler was at least fifteen yards away at the time. The two points awarded the Indians on this safety made the score a tie, 8 to 8, which was the final tally.

Hermann went into the game at quarterback and made two good gains on end runs. Our eleven was clearly outplaying the Indians but lack of time prevented a score which must surely have been ours.

Smith, Watson and Piollet, indeed every man on our eleven, tackled with deadly accuracy all through the game. Hirschman and McCleary were at their best in ground gaining as well as defensive work, while Vorhis played as plucky a game as ever a Penn State football hero played. Johnson and Gray worked like trojans at the guards, as did Smith, Harlow and Weaver at the tackles. Our good State team played a game that is going to bring the White and Blue out on top when the season is ended. The men were well coached under Hollenback, McIlveen, Scholl and Henry and the 700 undergraduates who yelled like mad for Old State's sturdy aggregation at Wilkes-Barre have faith in the outcome with such competent instructors. Let us all pull for the success of our eleven until the wind-up of the season!

With Our Opponents.

Now that the first big game of the 1909 season is a matter of Penn State football history, there is a short breathing spell before the University of Pennsylvania is met at Philadelphia on October twenty-third. This Saturday Geneva College appears here and it is likely that the visitors will put up an interesting argument with our White and Blue. The record of the Western Pennsylvanians in their two games played thus far this season is as follows:

Date	Score	Place
Oct 2	Geneva 0 W and J. 37	Washington, Pa.
Oct 9	Geneva 14 Allegheny 5	Beaver Falls, Pa.

It appears that Geneva has improved greatly since its overwhelming defeat at the hands of W. and J., for by cleanly winning over Allegheny, they defeated an eleven which is supposed to be about equal in strength to Grove City College which played here almost two weeks ago. From comparative scores our eleven will hardly be able to pile up such a score as 51 to 0 which was last year's tally. The line up of the Western Pennsylvanians will probably be: Campbell, left end; D. Stewart, left tackle; Mitchell, left guard; Smith, center; G. Stewart, or Patterson, right guard; Dobbins, right tackle; McCarter, right end; Wilson, quarter; Mathney, left half; Sterritt, right half; and J. Stewart, fullback.

Pennsylvania scored two touchdowns in the last six minutes of her West Virginia game last Saturday just after Captain Miller of the Quakers went into the fray and the Mountaineers were beaten 12 to 0. It is a fore-gone conclusion that our arguments with both these elevens will be warm ones.

Lafayette defeated Hobart college 50 to 0 chiefly through Captain McCaa's work last Saturday; if newspaper accounts are to be relied upon the Eastonians still have some hope of arranging matters so that they can play us this year, but as they would agree to no plan whatsoever toward bringing Lafayette and State together on the gridiron this much-desired result seems more than doubtful.

Bucknell took a brace after her unmerciful walloping at the Indians' hands and won from the strong Gettysburg team 9 to 3. A comparison of the State-Indian and Bucknell-Indian scores would show us to have a far superior eleven, but the fact that the Orange and Blue is preparing for Penn State as her one big game of the year means that we are
