EDITORIAL.

It would be gratifying to the whole student body if everybody were able to go to the games that are played away from the College. But as such a thing is well nigh impossible, the next best thing that the stay-at-homes ask is the furnishing of uninterrupted, lucid, logical and correct returns by phone.

Those who attended the seance in the old Chapel last Saturday, left there with a well developed case of grouch. Why? Because they had paid their money to hear returns and not the specimen bits of information that got through the line and out of the big megaphone. It was a very unsatisfactory afternoon at best, and the lack of information made it a nightmare. To follow the play was sometimes impossible. The ball would take unexplained jumps from one territory to the other. Always there was a "big argument" on

Let us hope that the returns of the rest of the games will be of better value to those who stay at home. Surely the promoters of the scheme can find some way to remedy the defects that cropped out last Saturday.

INTER-COLLEGIATE

The University of Illinois got in some strenuous training stunts recently. In order to get around the conference rule that barred early practice, the candidates went through their paces by electric light, some fifty men making up a squad which practiced after dark and on the quiet.

Dartmouth college is taking a holiday today for the inauguration of their tenth president, Ernest Fox Nichols, D. Sc., LL. D. Dr. Sparks is there as our representative.

Sixty-nine per cent of those whose names appear in "Who's Who in America" are college graduates. Since less than one per cent of the total population go to college, this shows that the college graduate's chance of making a name in the world is as 69 to 1.

Library Notice.

Under the competent supervision of Dr. Runkle, the college librarian, a booklet has been published this year which offers a number of valuable suggestions as to the arrangement and use of the reading material at present in the library alcoves. This book is especially for the use of instructors and students and may be obtained on application at the office in the building. It contains a detailed index of all books, pamphlets, magazines and periodicals to be found in the stacks and materially helps to facilitate the finding of literature without loss of time.
