

A Real Football Team.

The following article was published in the New York Telegram of October 25 and has been posted in the Athletic store, but we take the liberty of reprinting it that all may see it again and think about it. We can well feel very proud of our team for such commendation is rarely made on the so-called "minor colleges." We surely have a team in every sense of the word.

"These who like football for the game, and what there is in it, when it is properly played by a team which has been properly coached, missed the opportunity of the season when they failed to slip over to Philadelphia and see the contest between Pennsylvania and "Penn State."

"Bill" Hollenback, who is coaching the "Penn State" team, has turned out one of the smartest, cleanest cut football elevens that has been seen in the East this year, or last, or any other year. It is a team which wastes no energy. Every move is made for a purpose and the attention of the players is so concentrated that the team works in unison.

When one stops to think that in all of the play of Saturday against Pennsylvania there was only one miscue on the part of "Penn State," and that presumably due to a misunderstanding of the signals, an idea may be had of the quality of football which is played by these young men from up in the northern part of the Keystone State.

The team goes without friction. One player's part in the game fits perfectly with the support of his teammates. Two ends, one of them especially good—Very—help the general excellence of the eleven as a whole, and the backs, while not so large as some, nor so powerful as others, certainly do play the part of backs with a rare intelligence.

One of them is a New York boy. Vorhis—who went to High School of Commerce in this city. A good football player got away from some other eleven and was gathered to the fold by "Penn State" when Vorhis decided to take the course at that institution.

Scraps at Indiana.

The preliminary scraps between the two lower classes at Indiana University have begun and it is said the vicinity of the campus has taken on the appearance of a barbershop. Almost as many sophomores as freshmen have been forced to submit to losing their curly locks. The annual class rush, however, does not come until Washington's birthday anniversary.

At Illinois the track men who have won the varsity letter two years in succession are awarded a blanket with the block "I" upon it.

The youngest man in the freshman class of Harvard university is 11 years old.
