The Winter Courses in Dairy Husbandry Begin November 30.

The regular winter courses in the dairy husbandry department begin Nov. 30 and close Feb. 25. Three courses are offered in dairying: dairy husbandry, buttermaking and cheesemaking. The general dairy husbandry course is designed to fit men to manage dairy farms, the students being given training in the feeding and handling of dairy cows, the management of the dairy, the keeping of records and the making and handling of dairy products on the farm.

The courses in butter and cheesemaking are for men who intend to work in butter or cheese factories. The students receive instruction in the principles of buttermaking. This course is especially valuable for buttermakers who wish to make a special study of starters, cream ripening, moisture, control or any other special phase of buttermaking. The students work every forenoon in the large commercial creamery where the work is entirely practical. Cheesemakers who wish instruction in the handling of starters for cheesemaking, the yield of cheese, moisture, curd and rennet tests, or in the use of acid tests, will have opportunity of giving these subjects special study in the well equipped cheese laboratory placed at their disposal.

Students taking either the butter or cheesemaking course will also receive instruction and practice in ice cream and cottage cheese making.

Last year there were 90 students in the winter courses, and present indications point to a much larger enrollment this year.
