

Via Telephone.

To the students who could not go to Pittsburg to see the Thanksgiving game, the returns which came by telephone were of great value. The O. A. Chapter was full of enthusiastic rooters and minute attention was given to every play. When the team scored the game with several long runs the general opinion was held that the play would be expected to result in a score of 30-0. The game was a very interesting one and would have been a very profitable one if it had been played in person. In connection with the game, as seen at home, it is fitting to mention the work of the committee on returns. To them we are indebted for a first hand knowledge of all the outside games. The returns, with the exception, perhaps, of the Indian game, which was exceedingly difficult to report, have been interesting and accurate. Great credit is due the members of the com-

Basketball Prospects

Now that the 1909 football season has drawn to a close, attention is centered on basketball which will be the prominent intercollegiate athletic sport for the next few months. No time will be lost in getting the State team in good condition for the coming season, which is shown by the call for candidates early this week. Quite a large number of men reported at the Armory last Monday and the prospects for a strong team are very encouraging. Although Waha and Hunston are gone, Captain Hermann still has the support of three other varsity men, Blythe, Reed and James, and Mac Intyre, Hoerle, Davis, McKee, Armstrong and Amidon, all of last year's squad. From the freshmen players Dunsmore, Wright and Miller are showing no muscally strong and there are many others who are undoubtedly developing into fast material. Manager Summer has arranged an exceptionally good schedule and our team should win some glorious victories this winter. That intense interest is displayed in the game, is proven by the way in which the class teams have taken it up and we look to them to give their utmost support to the perfecting of our varsity team this year.

Track Meet.

There will be one more track meet this fall, which will be held on new Beaver Field as soon as the weather permits and this meet will be open to all college students. As this will be the final event of its kind until spring all track men are urged to compete. The exact date will be posted on the bulletin boards within the next few days.
