

Moved Into New Building.

During the Christmas vacation the First National Bank of State College moved into its new home, which is just next door to the old building. The new structure is built of red pressed brick with brownstone and mottled brick trimmings. The interior is finished in weathered oak and presents a very handsome appearance. The floor is laid with tile of a very pretty design.

The new bank is very conveniently arranged. Along the east side are several handsome wall desks. There is a separate compartment for ladies. A large vault occupies the center of the building. This vault contains several hundred private boxes. In the rear of the vault is the directors' room, the furnishings of which are in keeping with those of the business department.

The bank is a great convenience both to the students and to the faculty, a convenience which, we are sure, is greatly appreciated by both. Since its organization in 1904 the bank has enjoyed great prosperity. May its future more than compare with its past.

Dr. McAllister Coming.

Dr. A. S. McAllister '98, professorial lecturer of electrical engineering and associate editor of the Electrical World, will spend a week here during the month of February. His time will be devoted to lectures to the senior and junior students in Electrical Engineering. His coming is looked forward to with much pleasure, for his instructive lectures of last year are still fresh in the memory of the present seniors and members of the faculty.

The semester grades of the students will not be sent through the mail this year as has always been the custom. The Freshmen will get their standing from their advisors and all others will find theirs at their dean's office.
