Cosmopolitan Club.

In some of the largest schools in the country, there exist chapters, of what is known as the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs. The membership of this association includes students of all nationalities, Americans as well as foreigners. At some colleges these clubs own or rent houses or rooms for the benefit of the members. There is nothing secret about the organization. The purpose of the association is broad and far-reaching in character. The principal objects of the society, are first, to promote a better understanding of the political, economic and literary problems of different countries; second, to cultivate social intercourse between students of different nationalities and thereby foster the spirit of universal brotherhood, and establish strong international friendships. In carrying out these objects we will secure more foreign students. All those interested in the formation of this club are requested to meet in room 226 Main at eight o'clock Friday evening.

The Free Lectures.

Since the beginning of the examinations we have had the pleasure of hearing two more of the delightful lectures in Col. Nox McCain's series. On January 22 "Wales" was the subject of one of the most fascinating and interesting lectures of the course. Interest never waned from the time the party left Conway, on the way south thru the most interesting parts of the country, until the end of the journey on the picturesque south coast. The quaintness of the people in the remote and wider parts of the land, the stately nobility of the decaying ivy-covered castles, the beauty of the lakes and hills, the picturesqueness of the little fishing villages, all combine to produce in Wales a picture of surpassing beauty.

On January 29 Colonel McCain conducted his party thru the land of mystery, of hidden fascination—the land of the Pharaohs. Pictures of most intense interest—solemn temples, ancient tombs, half covered ruins, deserts and oases—cast a charm of mystery over the delighted audience.

The last lecture of the present series will be given by Colonel McCain in the Auditorium on February 5 "Constantinople" is the subject for the evening; and it is with great pleasure that we look forward to taking this last journey of the season with our capable guide.
