

advantage of the opportunity offered to store up strength and energy for later years by commencing now to get the human machine in perfect running order?

Fifteen minutes of properly arranged work each day is sufficient to keep any man in good condition and he can surely spare this amount of time with great gain to himself."

Following out his own suggestion the athletic director will have printed in the "Collegian" columns next week a specially arranged series of exercises for home use.

COLLEGE NOTES.

A bulletin recently issued by the United States Bureau of Education shows that there are 83 state universities and colleges similar to The Pennsylvania State College. The University of Minnesota leads with 5,066 students; The University of Illinois comes second and Cornell third. Of the 28 institutions having more than a thousand students, The Pennsylvania State College ranks twenty-third in the list. In the Engineering Schools State ranks eighth, and in Agriculture, including Forestry, seventeenth. State has the largest Forestry department in the list. In the number of instructors she ranks eighth. Seventeen of these institutions get a permanent income from a mill tax levied on property in the state; the others are dependent, like The Pennsylvania State College, upon appropriations made at each session of the state Legislature.

The pages in the World's Almanac for 1910 devoted to colleges make the statement that The Pennsylvania State College has 1,319 graduates, of whom 1,237 are now living. John N. Banks of Indiana, Pennsylvania, is the oldest graduate. The Penn State colors, Navy blue and white, are used only by one other college, Marietta College, in Ohio, although the colors, blue and white, are common among colleges. Penn State has the longest college yell with two exceptions, Grove City College and the University of Mississippi.

Prof. Espenshade addressed the High School Conference of Allegheny County last Saturday on the subject, "Should the Colleges make their entrance requirements more elastic?" The question was answered from the high school point of view by L. F. Lutton, and by Prof. Espenshade from the college point of view.

The speaker at the Sunday chapel service will be Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, D. D. of the Jewish Temple, Philadelphia. He is a very note worthy speaker and we can consider ourselves very fortunate in having the opportunity to hear him. He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and the Hebrew Union College, receiving his degree from the latter in 1885. For two years he served in Kansas City, leaving to accept a call from the Congregation Keneseth Israel, of Philadelphia. He is the author of many noted works along theological and philosophical lines, and is also a gifted lecturer.

The annual report of the President, and the report of the Treasurer for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, has recently been issued.

In President Sparks' report this retrospect is made. "The college year seems to show a steady growth of the institution in the goodwill and favor of the people of the commonwealth; an improvement in a more systematic organization of the instructional force; a gradual raising of the standard of scholarship and class standing; a more optimistic outlook on the campus; a decided advance in the spiritual life of the college; a toning up in athletic affairs; and a continuance of that loyalty and response to appeal long characteristic of the student body of The Pennsylvania State College.

We yet need a more thorough organization of the college force of
