Great Educators

"If I had my way I would see all young folks to work and finish the old ones to school," said Sparks, D. C.

In his last annual report, Dr. Elliot strongly advised young men to get into practical life as soon as possible and not expect a college degree to guarantee success.

This advice, ancient and modern, probably means that after you have battled a bit with the world, you begin to find your need of education more acute, to take advantage of your opportunities and learn.

Why not compromise the matter with great advantage by taking a summer course in salesmanship?—The "W. E. R. V. M. E." Alumni Association would like to hear from you.

It is a summer course for more than 2,000 men, averaged $742 profit a day, to say nothing of the by-products of the work.

The Banker and Investor Magazine for February contains an article by President Sparks on "Washington as a Business Man" and the Pennsylvania School Journal for the same month an address on "Shifting Ideals and How to Meet Them," given by President Sparks before the State Principals Association at Harrisburg in January.

By order of the Secretary of War, the Regiment of Cadets will be inspected by Captain Peter C. Harris, General Staff, Washington, D. C., who will come to State College from the University of West Virginia and go next to Girard College, but the time of coming is not yet arranged.

Messrs. Heaton, Track Engineer of the Phila. Traction Co., Frederic Darlington, Electrification Engineer for the Westinghouse El. and Mfg. Co. and A. L. Rohrer, Sup't. of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, are among the prominent engineers who will lecture at the college within the next few weeks.

The senior candidates whose names have been presented to the faculty for valedictorian of the class of 1910 are J. H. Harrison, B. G. Rumsey, R. B. Meredith, Robert Buka and C. R. Steele. After rati-
