

Mr. Armstrong's Recital.

Last Friday evening in the presence of a large audience in the Auditorium, Mr. H. P. Armstrong gave a most excellent and entertaining recital. He was very ably assisted by Miss Helen H. Atherton and Mr. E. O. Arthur. Only those who have heard Mr. Armstrong sing can appreciate the remarkable fullness, clearness and richness of his baritone voice and on Friday evening he was at his best. Each number was especially good but his rendition of the "Irish Folk Song," "An Arabian Romance," and a medley including "Dreaming," and "The Clock Song," drew forth exceptional applause.

In each of his solos, Mr. Armstrong was very beautifully accompanied by Miss Atherton, who also rendered two very pretty and difficult piano solos. Interspersed between the other numbers were two cello solos by Mr. E. O. Arthur, "To a Wild Rose" and "Song Without Words." It is indeed a rare treat to hear Mr. Arthur play at any time, but last Friday evening his playing was exceptionally beautiful. As a whole the recital was the best of its kind ever enjoyed by a Penn State audience.

The Pharsonians.

As commencement time draws near the Pharsonian show approaches perfection. Under the able direction of their new coach the men are moulding a really wonderful performance which will far exceed the performance of last fall and be so different that no one who saw the initial show will recognize the new one.

Several old stars will again be in the line-up and many new ones will also appear. The newest and best minstrel songs and jokes have been obtained and everybody ought to start the festivities of commencement week with a good, hearty laugh. It will make you feel like a king for the rest of the week. The Pharsonians will be on the job with everything new and a rare treat is in store for those who attend.

The German Correspondence Course.

This new feature in practical German was introduced in the German department by Prof. Fehr during the year and is now in full operation to the extent that a class of ten State students is exchanging letters at regular intervals with as many students of the Kaufmannsche Handelsschule of Dresden. The German students write in English and our students write in German, each correcting the errors in the letter received. When a certain number of letters have been written, they will be submitted for credit. This work has aroused considerable interest. At least six State students have announced their intention to pay Europe a visit during the coming vacation.
