THE COLLEEE WIDOW

Big Cast Including Fifteen Real Live Girls and One Inimitable Crocket.
On Thursday, March 30, when he glowing noonday sun ceases to hed its splendors and hides its smiling face in the dark and mys terious bosom of the glowing west 50 of the most glittering actors of the college and 15 fascinating girls will produce George Ade's great musical comedy, "The College Widow," in the Auditorium.
As the curtain rises Mr. Crockett, of supreme histrionic fame, makes his entrance by swift gazelle like movements, inhales a dollar's worth of calm, cooling, atmosphere, places his hand in the region of his vest pocket, expands his osculatory ori fice and voices those few lines of Milton:
I feel kind ot sad and bilious, Because,
My heait' keep' 'sighing, 'It couldn't was." "
However, he immediately gains his posture, as "Miss Jane Witherspoon," the college widow, his daughter, makes her entrance. She is accompanied by the dashing "Bess Tanner," (Mis; Burrows,) the the atnletic girl, whose presence stimulates in one's being thoughts of romance. A Southern "Miss Flora Wiggins" ( Miss Sharpe) as the vivacious boarding house keeper's daughter, with the Swiss sunset hair, lends splendor to all the scenes. "Billy Bolton," (Tom Piol let); Hon. Elam Hicks, (Prof. W. S. Dye), "Mattie McGowan" (Burly Watson); "Copernicus Talbot," (Mr. Hansen)-All are irresistibly funny. "Jack Larabee," (Harry Weaver), is the Coach. In this part the audience is treated to a dis play of rare ability. "Tom Pear son" (Jack Eberline) as the hero o the game leaves nothing to be desired in the thrill line, and "Elam Hicks" as the member of legislatur who has inbibed too freely of Dry Martinis keeps the audience in continuous state of laughter.
Space does not permit us to out line the work of such - characters as "Hiram Bolton" (Dale Mason) Ollie Mitchell'; (Mr. James) "Dick McAllister", (Dexter Very) "Mrs. Dalzelle", the dashing young Widow, (Miss Snyder), and a multitude of others. It is sufficien to say they're all there, and "ther with it"
"Jane" gazes retrospectively out the window and says: - "Fathe can't Silent Murphy, (Mr. Goed ecke), play on the football team?" resident Peter Witherspoon (Crockett), places his feet at an aggle of 45 degrees, gazes naively out into shallow space then replie deep H 1 et tone "N I" After rranging her hai "Mis Wiher "" fin hair, "Mis Wither is his brawny arms, and- -but gentle reader, we will stop here; you will have to pay the regular admission to get the rest.
'The musical comedy is filled full of Just such heart touching scenes as this. "Stub Talmage", (Mr. Miles), is exceptionally fine. The rendition of thes patt would do credit to a professional actor. You can't miss this show ot you won't be able for several munths. Get there! Its worth four times th time and nine ard of athletics that was established times the money.

Chicago Alumui Meeting.

On Monday evening March 20 the Alumni of Penn State living in and around Chicago met in the LaSalle Hotel for what should have been their fourth annual banquet. Owing to circumstances beyond control it has been impossible to get the ellows together for the last two ears so that this was, the first meet g since 1908. All expressed the ope that nothing would interfere with the next banquet which we expect to hold next spring. Eightee nthusiastic Penn State men, ragn ing, in classes, from the earliest to the latest, sat down at the table and renewed old friendships and made new ones. After reading a letter from Dr. Sparks telling of the present çonditions at State and expressing great hopes for her future Mr. F. A. Bryan president of the society called on Mr. C. E Denney to act as toastmaster. Mr. Denney first called on Prof. C. Alfred Smith a member of the class of ' 61 , and or five years Prof. of Chemistry a tate who spoke about the early struggle of State to gain recognitio rom the legislature and people of he State.
Mr. J. M. Waldron '89 of New York next spoke of the growth and influence of the New York branch and expressed the hope tha! the Chicago branch would soon equal i ot excell that in New York
Mr. J. C. Mock '90, told of our early struggles in athletics, espe cially football.
Mr. W. B. Jackson 'S0, followed with a few remarks on the early baseball.
Mr. W. M. Camp '91, gave some eminiscence of dormitory life in the early $90^{\circ}$ s.
Next in order came a short business sessionat which officers were lected for the ensuing year. The fficers elected were J. M. Thomp on '07, Pres, Wm. P. Jackson '90 Vice Pres., C. L. Armsby 04, Secy & Treas.
Those present were, Prof. C. 'Al red Smith '61, J. M. Waldron 89 of New York City, F. A. Bryan, '90 f South Bend, Ind, Wm. B. Jack on, '90, J. C. Mock '90, of Detroit Mich W M Camp '01 H E Mich., W. M. Camp, 91, H., E Greenwood '93, Columbus, O., J. M Thompson,'97, of Hammond, Md., Jénney,'00, Cleveland O., D. G. Cy pher '01, J. R. Decker '03, Detro Mich., C. L. Armsby . '04, C. N Bainbridge '07, J. M. Loose '07, A D. Doud '10, G. F. Speer '10, J. J. Spangler ' 10.
The officers are very desirous of making the Chicago branch of the association the strongest and best of all the local societies, not even excepting Pittsburg which numbers something like 200, and for thi reason all Penn State men in Chi cago or vicinity are requested to send their name, class, and address

Interclass Basketball.
The. Interclass Basketball League which closed its season last week made, among other things, a te markable record for itself During he season two important facts ate worthy of note They are the good management through which the league was able to be successfully run, and the other, the high standard of athletics that was established by the players by the players
In connection with the work of the management of the League it is plainly seen, that the plan was financially successful. The total gate receipts amounted to two hundred and two dollars, while the total expenses were less than one hundred and ninety dollars. The means, through which the League proved able to pay all necessary expenses, was made possible, only by careful arrangement of dates, and by the many small things that successful managers do to make thletics appeal to spectators.
On the other hand, little need be said concerning the high standard the athletes. From the start the players of all teams realized, by competition for positions, that a man to do justice' to himself and to an to do jus, must keep in the best physical condition. The bes physical condition. 'The fac for forty men remained in training for three months of the winter, should justify any small shortcomshould justify any small shortcomings that developed duing the seaon. The spirit of rivalry between the four teams, while sometimes in tense, was always fair. Many of the personal conflicts that marked ge gam:s of last season, were al nost unseen and unh

A series of games.

A comparison of the results of the games shows that the sophomores won eight games and lost one game, thus entitling them to the first place in standing. The seniors and juniors tied for second place, each having won four and lost five games, while the freshmen through lack of experience and lack of practice, are in third place with wo games won and seven lost. Armśby ' 12 , leáds the players in number of field goals secured, but Rogers ' 13 , taking the total numbe of points into consideration, scored wo points more than Armsby Armsby's record shows 46 goal's from field and 22 fouls, a total of 14 points, while Rogers made 42 field goals and 32 shots from the oul line, a tot 31 of 116 points Coopey '12 and Miller :11 wer trong in the defensive positions on their respective teams and O'Neil' ork for the seniors was the best een in the League. thus in shor the management and players of the Interclass basketball league produc ed a series of games this winter that were highly beneficial to them selves, and that afforded much sport to the large number of students who witnessed the games.
