Senior Editors In assuming the Retire work of the senior editors who are leaving the staff, it is the desire of the new men to perform in as capable a manner the tasks our predecessors have so well accomplished. Under excellent management, the "Collegian" has made real progress during the year, and has gained in interest and value. It shall be our purpose to continue, and wherever possible, to better the publication; and to make it a frank mouthpiece of the students, the mental work has been begun. Faculty, and the Alumni of the college. Each man who is interested in the welfare of his college can help us by his active interest, his criticism, and his advice. Show us that you are willing to help us in the work of giving the institution a paper that is worthy of its growing strength.

To the retiring editors we offer halls. praise for the manner in which they have performed their duties, and appreciative thanks for the assistance they have at all times rendered the younger members of the staff. In the midst of their duties they have found time to be a continual source of help and encouragement to the men who were to take up the worn after them.

The New The staff has elected as new members of the ed-Krimmel, '13. The men have shown neering Building their ability in the work which they have already done, and will make a strong addition to the list of associate editors. In welcoming them to their new positions we wish them all the pleasure which arises from mingled cares and delights of reportorial work.

Messers R. G. Knight and J. W. Cronemeyer spent Easter vacation in making drainage area surveys in connection with the experiments which are being carried on by the School of Engineering to determine the amount of water run off from mountainous water sheds in central Pennsylvania. The work is under the direction of Professor Walker.

The new foundry is nearing completion, the work of encasing it in brick having been begun.

The department of Milling Engineering has received a large amount itorial department, G. A. Barker, of milling apparatus which may be '12; R. M. Evans, '13; and M. S. seen in the basement of the Engi-

Flower Show.

On Saturday, April 29 a flower show will be given in the new greenhouses under the auspices of the department of Horticulture and the Crab Apple Club. No admission fee will be charged for the exhibit, which will include showings of first class flowers from the college greenhouses as well as those of many prominent florists throughout the State. Since the construction of Schenectady Alumni Association of the greenhouses last summer, inthe Penn State college was held at terest in commercial floriculture has the Mohawk Golf club Thursday increased greatly, and this is a good evening April 13, 1911.
