CHORUS GIRLS IN 1776

The Dashing Beauty Show, composed of a Chorus of Ten Promises to Give Enjoyment to the Most Serious. Co-Eds to Give Annual Production on Saturday Evening.

On May 13th the Auditorium will be the scene of something different, something unusual, something that a college community very seldom has the pleasure of enjoying. At this time the College Girls will produce the "Girls of 1776".

This show is filled with a dazzling array of wonderful colonial costumes, drastic situations, touching love scenes, moments of blood-curdling melodrama and fascinating dances and minuets. The cast contains many actresses whose work has heretofore been tested and they need no expostulations. Miss Marjorie Lyon plays the heavy part, "Madam Mayfield", a loyalist to the king, in a true artistic style. "Madam Mayfield" and her daughters "Helen", Anna Maurice, and "Amanda", Eleanor Shaffer, make an exceptionally strong part, and the interpretation by all three is unusual.

"Dolly Darrah", Miss Jean McNamey, and "Barbara Steele", Miss Helen White, are the ladies who smuggle the "papers" to the front in the disguise of men. Say, let me whisper something to you, pry yourself loose from that change and see this. You'll never miss it. The impersonation is wonderful. "Grandmire", is impersonated by Margaret Krebs. This character is one that requires particular as well as peculiar ability and it is well filled. "Jacqueline," the french maid, Miss Katherine Kessler, exhibits all the bewitching features of a parisienne, her interpretation of a French role is exceptional as is the way she depicts the wiles and evasiveness so characteristic of the French.

"Betsy Ross", the mother of the stars and stripes, is impersonated by Miss Bess Fye. She fills her part admirably and leaves nothing to be desired. "Honora Drake", the wavering loyalist, Lucy Kemmerer, is the love-lorn maiden. The four pickinnies, Misses Davis, Strode, Williams and Ride! Here is something rare, something that breaks up the serious parts with tons of laughter. They do a characteristic cake-walk and hoe-down, this in itself is worth a month's pay. Miss Davis, as "Troubles", depicts the southern darkey in an original manner and is placed in trying situations. "Anne Van Dresser", Miss Marguerite Hinchman, is a loyalist and an associate of Madam Mayfield.

Now is your last and only chance to see the "College Girls", collectively. Since spring time has cast its mystic chorus upon us the "standing room only" sign is on the cottage, so this will positively be the last annual, farewell, grand bridal tour the show will make this year. See the Merry Chorus Girls of '76, the 20th Century Variety is not in it, they have been delegated to the garret along with the remainder of the "has beens."

On May 13th just get a top seat and let your feet hang down, and enjoy yourself to the utmost. After the show, you will find the stage entrance on the right. Orders should be placed early.

Two Out of Three on Northern Trip

Syracuse and Bucknell were clearly outplayed and defeated on the recent "Northern" baseball trip made by our varsity nine, but Cornell got away with the first struggle in the journey by a close score. The final tally at Ithaca was 4 to 3 with the Cornellians on the long end, 13 to 2 at Syracuse with the Blue-and-White waving triumphantly, and 7 to 3 at Lewisburg making our third consecutive victory over the Orange-and-Blue on the diamond. All hail to Captain Kelly's players with their third successful jaunt of the season completed!

The Cornell struggle was characterized as the best seen at Ithaca thus far this season. Neither team scored until the sixth inning and but for some unfortunate slip-ups we would have beaten the Cornell nine. Craig's double brought in Whitney in the sixth after the "big boy" had stolen second. In the next round Haddow's single drove in Eberlein who had just hit for two bases, and Haddow scored later on Carson's hit. The "Big Red team" annexed two in the sixth and one in each of the two following rounds and thus won from the sons of Pennsylvania for the first time since 1906.

Syracuse had downed Dartmouth 6-4 while our game at Ithaca was progressing and the "Orange nine" was confident of victory on May fifth. However, after the third inning our batters got together and hit harder than in any game this season. Craig had a home run, Blythe and Eberlein triples and Workman a double, all these hits being hard smashes. Minich pitched in splendid form, while a new battery, Murphy and Manion, also worked two innings in this game.

With Klepfer on the firing line there was never any doubt of our final triumph last Saturday in the third game of trip. "Rube" fanned fifteen men and twirled in the form that reminded one of his work in Bucknell (two) and Cornell triumphs last year. Eberlein tallied a triple while Craig continued his great batting by making three hits, one a homer and one a double. Harry Bubb did not accompany Coach McCleary's team on the trip but played on Saturday against Bucknell. Every player worked hard and consistently during the journey, indicating that we may look for the Blue and White nine to play the best kind of baseball in the five home games following the Northern jaunt.

Owing to lack of space in this issue we cannot print the complete scores of the games.

Dedication of Baseball Grandstand.

Immediately after the track meet last Friday the formal dedication of the baseball grandstand on New Beaver Field took place. The new structure was erected by the senior class with the aid of Mr. White '82, of New York, Mr. Hamill '80 of Columbus. H. R. Moffitt, in behalf of the Senior class presented the magnificent stand to Dr. Sparks president of the college, who accepted it in behalf of the board of trustees. The bronze plate, bearing the names of the three men who aided the 1911 class in building the new stand, did not arrive in time for the dedication exercises. President Moffitt, of the senior class, in the presentation address said that it was hoped that the custom of using the grandstand by the upper-classmen would be followed out as this would enable them to better entertain their commencement visitors and that it would be a distinct custom which the two lower classes could look forward to. The new stand is a handsome structure with a concrete foundation, has a seating capacity of 700, and cost $5,500.

Soccer Football.

Soccer football, which has become so popular since its introduction into this country, may soon hold a prominent place in the athletics at Penn State. Under the promise of Director Golden that, in case a class game between the two lower classes is played, the winner will receive a large cup, the freshman class has already taken action by establishing regular soccer practice. No action has yet been taken by the Sophomore class, but it is probable the plan will meet with the approval of the men of 1913. In case it is decided to add to the inter-class scraps the soccer football game, material will be developed which may in the future represent Penn State in this new branch of athletics.

Break Ground for New Church.

On the afternoon of May 10 the congregation of St. Andrew's broke ground for the new church at the corner of Frazier and Foster avenue. These delegates, clergy, and laymen arrived by special train at four o'clock, proceeded at once to the grounds where the service began at about 4:15. In this impressive ceremony, the bishop of the diocese, Rt. Rev. James Henry Darlington, was assisted by the recently consecrated bishop of Erie, the Rt. Rev. Rogers Israel.

After the service the delegates were entertained by the college and by the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's.
