Committee.

A Communication.

There in one objectionable feature in the life of this community which is of common occurrence but which is not observed anywhere in the world in refined circles. It is that of individuals leaving the Auditorium during a lecture or concert.

Last Saturday evening there was a marked example of this "faux pas" when Sadakichi Hartman was lecturing upon Walt Whitman. Not five minutes elapsed during the entire lecture without the opening and shutting of the heavy doors in the rear of the room.

The lecture was advertised as a free one, and so it was, but there were those in the audience who had paid more than the price of a ticket that it might be free to the general public and these people, as well as the speaker, deserved at least common respect and courtesy from this same "general public."

It is the expression of an intensely selfish man if he is willing to disturb an audience of two hundred people for the sake of his own pleasure. It is doubtless thoughtless, but all thoughtlessness, is a form of selfishness.

If a man accepts an invitation to a free lecture he should no more think of leaving the room before it is finished than he would think of leaving the table of his hostess before the dinner might be finished because she had served tomato salad when he did not care for it.

Fort Pitt Hotel Offers Club Room.
To the students of State College and also the members of the Alumni who may be in Pittsburg to attend the Thanksgiving game between State and Pitt:

The management of the Fort Pitt Hotel wishes to announce that the English room, with a seating capacity of five hundred people will be opened on Wednesday night October 29th, and arranged so that the visiting students and alumni can make use of it for their rendezvous from 9 o'clock until 12 o'clock. In conjunction with this, the band from State College will render a concert from 10:30 until 12 p. m. This room will be arranged for service the same as any of the other dining rooms of the hotel, but will be a strictly State room.

We trust that under the circumstances, those who desire to get together and meet before the game and enjoy a sociable evening, both the student body and the alumni, will avail themselves of this opportunity. Tickets that are given to the students of State College will be sufficient to show that they are students at this institution and will grant admission. Arrangements for the alumni will be made at a later date.

Highway Engineering.

The department of Civil Engineering of The Pennsylvania State College succeeded in securing the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the state Highway Department, and the United States office of Public Roads, and in February 1911 sent out from the college a Good Roads train which travelled over all the Pennsylvania Railroad lines in the state. The train carried, besides a full equipment of road making machinery and materials, a number of lecturers and demonstrators who addressed and explained the methods of making and maintaining good roads to over fifty thousand people during the trip.

The success that attended this movement for good roads has led to the formation of a new course in Highway Engineering in the college. This course is identical with the regular Civil Engineering course up to the second semester of the junior year when highway design and tests of highway materials are substituted for railroad engineering. These subjects are continued through the senior year.

Addition to Power Plant.

The new battery of five hundred horse power Keeler water tube boilers has recently been given a severe test which has been most satisfactory. The boilers are so connected that they can be used for either high or low pressure, two hundred and ten pounds respectively. With these additional boilers the plant is well equipped as there is now available about 1000 H. P. of either high or low pressure steam. It was to meet the requirements of the new boilers that the new brick stack, similar in design and of the same height as the original, was erected.
