PRINCETON DEFEATED

Whitney Pitches Great Game. Craig's Opportune Hits Drive in Four Runs—Greenbaum Weakens in Seventh.

Penn State scored a great victory on Wednesday by defeating Princeton on University Field in the most interesting game of the season. Whitney and Craig were directly responsible for the first defeat to be suffered by Princeton this year at the hands of a college nine. Whitney pitched one of his best games and after the first inning was practically unhittable when the Tigers threatened to score. Craig was the other big factor in the victory, for his single in the seventh drove in two runs while his home run with Bien on base added the final counts in the ninth.

Both teams had several chances to score, and this fact together with the closeness of the score made the game very exciting. In the first inning Crawford was hit by a pitched ball, Bien fouled out, Craig received a life on White's error, Crawford going to third. Craig then stole second, but Eberlein and Carson hoisted flies to the infield. The Tigers scored their only run of the game in the first. Pendleton singled to the infield, stole second and scored on Worthington's single. The rest were easy outs.

Whitney walked Parker and Shaw in the second but their team mates couldn't get the ball out of the diamond. In the third Whitney walked and reached third on infield outs by Crawford and Bien, but was left when Parker caught Craig's fly.

State had another great chance to score in the fourth when Eberlein, Carson, and Blythe singled in succession. Eberlein was forced at home on McKibben's hit to Shaw, Henderson struckout and Carson was caught out third base.

Rhoades opened the fifth with a single but got no further, while State threatened in the sixth when Craig and Eberlein walked, only to be left on first and second, when Carson struckout and Blythe and McKibben fled out to the infield.

Penn State practically won in the seventh. Henderson singled and was forced out at second by Whitney. Crawford singled and Bien walked filling the bases, Craig then singled, scoring Whitney and Crawford, but Bien was caught trying to reach third on the hit. Craig then stole second and third but Eberlein went out Shaw to Rhoades. The Tigers appeared like certain winners in both the seventh and eighth innings, only to be blocked by the pitching of Whitney, when victory was almost theirs.

After Rhoades and Greenbaum were disposed of in the seventh, Pendleton walked and Worthington singled, Pendleton going to third, Worthington stole second, but the mighty Sam White fell a victim to Whitney's steam by striking out. The eighth afforded a still better chance when after Sterritt had walked, Whitney failed to field bunts by Reed and Parker. With the bases full Princeton attempted the squeeze play, but Shaw missed the ball and Sterritt was run down between third and home. Shaw then struck out while Carson disposed of Rhoades at first.

Craig made the victory sure in the ninth. Whitney walked, Crawford fled to third and Bien forced

A LETTER FROM EGYPT

Latest Word From President Sparks.

Jerusalem, March 26, 1912.

A most interesting sight in Upper Egypt is the great dam at Assuan, constructed to conserve the Nile water during the late autumn and to let it escape by canals to irrigate the lower valley during the early spring months. The dam has proven such a blessing to the lower valley that it has been raised several feet and will now be of service to the upper valley. When one thinks of this valley as nearly 500 miles in length and from one to twenty miles in breadth with scarcely a drop of rain falling during the entire year, he realizes what irrigation means to the millions of people who live in it and who depend almost wholly upon agriculture.

The work necessary to raising the four feet is almost complete. A rumor reached me that a Penn State man was employed among the engineers but I could not find him, although I found one or two Americans. Hydraulic power is used in opening and closing the lock gates. The dam is over a mile long and is a splendid piece of work. The ancient and the modern here come into conflict because the back water caused by the dam has submerged some of the most beautiful temples in all Egypt.

One of my ambitions was to make a journey into the desert to test the witchery of the isolation as described by Hitchcock in "The Garden of Allah". But a short trip out from Assuan by donkey and another from the Pyramids of Ghizeh by camel satisfied me. The dust, heat and flies dispel all witchery. The donkey has a bad habit of individuality. He will take advantage of a moment of carelessness on the part of the rider or the propeller who runs behind him and make a bolt away from the group aimlessly across the sand. I was about to say "the road" but all sand looks alike. It requires several thwacks from the donkey boy's stick to get him back to team work.

The arrival of a train at an Oriental terminal station is worth seeing—and hearing. The shouting pushing, fighting, and gesticulating of the porters, hotel agents, and carriage drivers—really it makes a college "scrap" seem like a tea party. Cairo was bad enough, Port Said was worse, but Jerusalem beats them all.

Coming out of the Suez Canal at Port Said, we had a surprise. On the deck of the little vessel carrying us to Joppa, we saw Professor Baker, who was a member of the Penn State faculty from 1861 to 1866. He was present at the reunion of the Class of '61 last Commencement, and has many pleasant recollections of that occasion. He has been in the Orient since last December.

I wish I could transport the entire student body to view the scene from my hotel window as I write. There is a market in the street below, where hundreds of Arabs and Jews are seated on the ground behind little piles of grain, fruit, seeds, wool, skins, and many articles which I do not recognize. Camel trains, flocks of goats, and also donkeys and two-wheeled carts thread their way among the merchants, with a vast amount of shouting, protesting, and an occasional fight.

THE INTERCLASS TRACK MEET.

Freshmen Easily Defeat Sophomores by the Score of 70 1-2 to 55 2-3.

The large crowd which turned out to see the track and field meet, between the two lower classes last Saturday witnessed many interesting events. The large number of contestants and keen interest shown by all present combined to make the first interclass meet a decided success.

Among the most closely contested events was the 100 yard dash which was won by Craig '14, in ten and four fifth seconds with Elliot a close second.

The first year men were particularly strong in the 440 yard dash, first and second places being taken by Entwisle and Hedrick, both of 1915. In the one mile event Entwisle distanced his opponents during the last lap and finished in four minutes, 57 seconds, second place being closely contested by Henning and Savery and taken by the latter.

Keyser '14, made good time in the two mile event and finished nearly half a lap ahead of his opponents. The field trials which were carried on in connection with the track events were an added attraction of the afternoon. Lamb '15, took first place in three events, namely, the shot put, hammer throw and discus throw.

In the pole vaulting event Hays '14 cleared the bar at ten feet, six inches, second place being held jointly by Foster '14 Carpenter '14, and Mathers '15, each scoring 1 1-3 points.

Summary:
100 yard dash—Won by Craig '14; second, Elliot '15; third, Spence '15. Time 10 4-5 seconds.

220 yard dash—Won by Elliot '15; second, Silver '14; third Erb '15. Time 24 seconds.

The men wear black woolen turbans or a red fez on their heads, and have a woolen cloak of brown and black stripes about them.

If I wrote all that interests me, the columns of the Collegian would be exhausted. Here we have our first mail in nearly five weeks and learn of the blizzards at home, of the Dr. Gill memorial, the Y. M. C. A. play, and the meet with Yale. Congratulations on the many successes and the best wishes of all the party.

THE PENN RELAYS

Penn State Takes Third Place in Relays Defeating Swarthmore, McGill, and Lafayette.

Last Saturday on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Penn State made a credible showing by taking third place in the one mile relay. Finer started the race for State, maintained a good pace and finished first at the end of the first quarter mile. Michner, our next runner carried first place until he reached the tape when a Virginia man equaled him. The Virginia runner, however, made a poor touch of the tape while Michner's touch was perfect thus allowing Reinhardt, our third man, to start the third relay with a lead of five yards. Reinhardt, ran a careful race but the wet track hindered him somewhat, and he dropped into third place. Leyden, our last runner, made good time finishing the mile relay in third place with a gap of only eight yards between the first man and himself.

The colleges entered in the same class as Penn State finished in the following order; Virginia University, Carlisle, Penn State. Swarthmore, McGill University, (Champions of Canada) and Lafayette. The time of the winning team was 3:32 2-5.

TEAM BLANKS DICKINSON NINE

Carlisle Men Could Not Hit Whitney Craig and Henderson Make Drives for Home Runs.

In a nine inning game last Saturday afternoon Dickinson was shut out by the Blue and White nine by a score of 10-0 on New Beaver Field. Whitney pitched remarkable ball, allowing only four scattered hits and striking out fourteen men. Craig was easily the star in batting and base running.

Eberlein and Henderson did good work with the stick. Both could be depended on for heavy and consistent hitting. Mention must also be made of Crawford's sensational catch in right field. The summary follows:

Penn State	10	0	0

Batteries, for Dickinson, Nork and Schaffer; for Penn State, Whitney and Henderson. Two base hits, Eberlein. Home runs, Craig, Henderson, Singles, Craig 2, Eberlein, Henderson, Carson. Struck out by Whitney 14, by Nork 10. Base on balls, off Whitney 2, Nork 2. Stolen bases, Crawford, Craig 2, Eberlein, Carson 3. Wild pitch, Whitney. Umpire Torrey. Time 2:00.

Interscholastic Meet.

Seventy-six entries have been received for the fourth annual interscholastic track meet which will take place promptly at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon on New Beaver Field. County club presidents and others wishing to entertain the athletes should see Manager Gordon or Assistant Managers, Clark and Bevan. The schools which had sent in their entries up to noon yesterday, are Altoona High, Harrisburg High, Coudersport High, Juniata Prep., Johnstown High and Williamsport Dickinson Seminary.

Eaglesmere in June.

The Y. M. C. A. is planning to send a hundred students to the Student Conference at Eaglesmere, June 14 to 23. The conference affords a good opportunity for college men to meet some splendid men and at the same time enjoy a vacation at Eaglesmere.
