SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1912

The Class of 1912. The college days of 1912 have drawn to an end. Duty now sounds its call in their ears from new fields, with which we are unfamiliar. The ways part here. After next Wednesday 1912 will be a memory at Penn State, a glorious memory however for those who remain to think about. During the four years this class has been forming valued friendships and collecting cherished remembrances which will be carried through life as reminders of time spent within the shadows of "Old Main". To us these friendships mean more than anything else, but to those who follow the splendid athletes, the exceptionally strong positive personalities of the leading men of the class, the wise customs and regulations instigated and established by the class, and the new Wireless Tower presented by them will go with our athletic victories of the year over Cornell, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Yale and Pitt toward making 1912 a banner year at Penn State.

Immediately after graduation, the majority of the men will take up their new duties. All connecting with Penn State, and most earnestly the Penn State Collegian, wish unlimited success to the members of 1912.

The Retiring Board. The Penn State Collegian records with regret the loss to the paper of five retiring men by graduation this spring. All have been connected with the paper for three years and have put their best efforts in the work.

The 1913 La Vie. The yearly book published by the Junior Class of the Pennsylvania State College, the La Vie, has been distributed the last week. The edition compares very favorably with other La Vies and is a credit to the La Vie board and to the class. This is the twenty-fourth edition of the book. Two important changes in the style of the publication are noticed. The individual write-ups are brief and well chosen, and the junior class is divided into schools, the latter change bringing out more and more the distinction between different units of the college.

W. S. Kriebel, Jr.
Mr. W. S. Kriebel, Jr., editor-in-chief of the paper has performed his editorial duties in a most creditable manner. The difficulties of presenting to those interested in the college a paper that will please the majority and at the same time take a definite stand for the right thing have been largely overcome by the retiring editor. By untiring effort and the use of much tactfulness the "Collegian" has been well edited during the last year and takes a rather high rank among similar weekly periodicals.

E. A. James.

Mr. James has filled the position of business manager of the paper with unusual ability. His task, a hard one from all view points, did not cause the many problems in financing such a proposition as the "Collegian" to be neglected. The retiring business manager is to be congratulated upon his successful manipulation of the business department.

The Three Assistants.

Mr. W. P. Little, assistant editor, and Messrs H. S. Coughlin and T. Lenchner, assistant business managers, have been of invaluable aid in the success of the weekly. Mr. Little, in the editorial department, has taken an active part in handling details and has secured many valuable articles for the paper. Messrs Coughlin and Lenchner, assistant business managers, have made it only possible to run the paper through their efforts in securing subscriptions.

That part of the constitution of the Athletic Association providing for the awarding of the prescribed tennis insignia was voted on and passed May 29.

to insure normal ripening with rapid sugar formation.

The right kind of fertilizer is a good investment. The vines will continue to bear melons of first quality instead of yielding only one or two pickings and then a lot of unmarketable culls.

Supplement the compost with 1000 to 1500 pounds of 5-8-10 goods, the ammonia to be derived mainly from organic substances like blood, tankage, fish or cottonseed meal.

This is equally good for cucumbers, pumpkins and squashes.

Write us for Potash prices and free books with formulas and directions.
