WEDNESDAY, OCT. 16, 1912

The W. & J. Last Saturday's game with Washington and Jefferson was one of the greatest football games that has ever been played on New Beaver Field. The game was preceded by a monster Mass Meeting the evening before, the result of which was that the spirit shown by the team and student body the next day was far beyond all expectations. Fully 5,000 people witnessed the game. In addition to the large number of visitors and the hundred rooters that came from Washington, one notable feature was the large number of Alumni present. It is estimated by a comparison of registers and information obtained from various sources that 400 alumni were here.

The game was marked by good feeling between the visitors and our own supporters. The cheering of the wearers of the Red and Black was inspiring and increased all the more towards the end of the game when victory seemed almost impossible. As to our cheering, it was never better. This fact was made possible through the efforts of cheer-leader Skinner and his able assistants.

The visiting team played a good game and fought for every inch of ground until the final whistle, yet they were outplayed in almost every stage of the game by Coach Hollenback's system of attack.

Captain Mauthe's toe was responsible for the first feeling of confidence, when in the first period, he kicked a neat field goal. Following this the great Blue and White machine worked as it has in very few games of the past. By those who saw the contest, it is believed that no team in the country could have stopped Penn State on Saturday. One regrettable thought is that the game could not have been witnessed by the Eastern critics.

W. and J. were beaten, yet they were not humbled. Victory simply came to the better team. The game was a new milestone in games that have been played on New Beaver Field. It is to be hoped that in future seasons one game at least can be played on our field that will create as much interest from alumni and students as the last game did.

While coming up The Paths from the Co-op corner, towards Main Building, one of the first eye-sores that one notices is the disfiguring path which is being cut deeper, daily, by thoughtless students in crossing the campus.

This path, which starts at the nearest available space above the ornamental shrubbery, could be avoided entirely, if we would be content to keep on the walk until we had gone beyond the already bare ground.

Paths cut now will be there in the spring, at the time when we wish our campus to look its best; and as this disfigurement is in a particularly noticeable place, surely it behooves every true college man to, at least, do his share in checking this abuse before it goes any further.

BY THE WAY.

At the annual senior elections at Cornell, the well known track man, John Paul Jones, was unanimously elected president of the 1913 class.

Eugene Le Roy Mercer, captain of the University of Pennsylvania football team for this year and last year, was unanimously elected captain of the track team at the recent track banquet.

Harvard undergraduates are much aroused over a ruling of the faculty now in effect for the first time, by which all students in the college are required, before promotion in the junior class, to pass an oral examination in French or German.

Dr. Butler, of Columbia, said at the formal opening of The School of Journalism:—"I served my apprenticeship in the field of journalism. What every editor wanted then was a man with a nose for news. They are still in demand; whenever a nose for news crops up, our School of Journalism will try to make it distinguish between a stench and a perfume."

The freshman class at Union College, defying all precedents established in the history of the institution, succeeded in beating the sophomore class in the annual cane-rush. It is the largest and best prepared freshman class coming into the institution since the time of the Civil War.

The Yale professors are congratulating themselves that the student speeches at the freshman class meetings have changed somewhat from those fifteen years ago. A that time athletics was considered to be of more importance than curriculum work. The students are beginning to realize that other forms of college activities should be ranked as high as the athletic sports.

New Specials Welcomed.
 The men in the class of first year specials were given an official welcome by the second year men on the evening of October 8. Professors Shaw and Kilpatrick gave short addresses, after which refreshments were served.

Plans for organization of the class were discussed during the evening. The new men were urged to adopt some organization in as much as, when united as a class, they could do so much more for the college than otherwise.

Tickets for Returns.
 Tickets for football returns will be on sale at the Toggery Shop Thursday evening. The price of the tickets is fifty cents, each one being good for the four games played on other fields than New Beaver.

Resignations.

Mr. J. W. Gregg, head of our landscape gardening department, has handed in his resignation, to take effect on February 1st, 1913. Mr. Gregg will go to the University of California, where he will assume charge of the landscape gardening work. Here again it may be said that the college will lose a valuable professor because all that have come in contact with Mr. Gregg, know that he is a man of ability, and possessed of admirable artistic taste.

Mr. C. F. Shaw, who has been very active in the Agronomy department of Penn State, will also leave for the University of California about January 1st, 1913. As Mr. Shaw has been very instrumental in the mapping of soils in this part of the state, for the past few years, which has made him an expert along those lines, he will take the chair of Soil Technology at California. Here again is an instance where we may extend our congratulations to the other institution for the type of men which they will have with them shortly.

Descriptive Geometry.

A follow-up class in Descriptive Geometry is about to be formed to assist students in making up conditions in any of the courses offered previous to this semester.

Those having such conditions, should endeavor to enter this class, as by reason of changes introduced into the new catalog, the old courses in Descriptive Geometry have been discontinued.

The first meeting of the follow-up class will be held 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, Oct. 18th, in Room 207, Eng. Bldg. Students intending to enter the class, should report at that time, bringing with them written permits from the schools in which they are enrolled.

Among the Alumni.

Penn State men who are with the Bureau of Mines in Pittsburgh are H. I. Smith '07, H. Deike, H. D. Mason, Jr., J. T. Ryan, Edward Lynch, H. F. Braddock, F. C. Seibert and W. C. Cope.

D. D. Dodge is superintendent of mines at Cokedale, Col. A. F. Sutton is working in Knoxville, Tenn., with the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

An Addition to "Old Main".

A new stone terrace is being added to the west side of "Old Main". The new terrace will be in harmony with the building and will greatly add to the appearance of the same. A new concrete walk will lead from the new steps to the main walk. This walk will be built over the tunnel and will not have the present curve in it.
