WEDNESDAY, DEC. 11, 1912

A series of meetings for the discussion of "College Men's Questions," held in the Old Chapel every Sunday evening at 9:30 and conducted by Dean Holmes, and a series of lectures on the Psychology of Right Living, held in the Auditorium at 6:30, also given by Dean Holmes, have recently been inaugurated.

Large numbers have been attending the meetings held thus far; each meeting sees a larger crowd than the one previous, and according to present indications, the Old Chapel will not long be large enough for the 9:30 gatherings.

An eager and much interested crowd of men form the audiences at these meetings. Their desire to hear and to learn Dean Holmes' views on difficult problems, and to come into close personal contact with him is plainly shown in the increasing number at each meeting. The instance of last Sunday night when Dr. Holmes was unavoidably detained and was unable to meet the men, and when those who had gathered to hear him waited forty-five minutes for his return, is alone sufficient proof of the character of the lectures and of the high esteem of the students for Dean Holmes.

The time for these meetings is arranged so that everyone can attend one or both each Sunday. Those who fail to attend them lose excellent opportunities to gain a great deal pertaining to right living and right thinking.

Miss Jane Addams, the noted authoress and settlement worker, will come to Penn State for Jan. 4 and 5. Miss Addams was instrumental in founding the famous Hull House of Chicago. She has been active in settlement work in Chicago, and she has also written numerous works on Social Conditions.

Probably Miss Addams' recent activity in the Campaign of the Progressive Party, has done more than anything else to enhance her popularity.

Come back in time to here this noted women speak.

Notices of meetings of various student organizations are gladly received by the "Collegian." These notices should reach us not later than Monday evening and the persons who submit such announcements should make certain that the hour and place is absolutely correct. Last week two meetings were scheduled for the same hour and in the same room. Persons making such reservations should see to it that no other organization uses their privilege.

DR. BUCKHOUT'S FUNERAL.

Ceremony Very Impressive—Many of Doctor's Friends Present.

Last Friday it was again the sad duty of the college to attend the funeral exercises of one of the most beloved and respected men in the oldest and truest of friends of this institution, who lay in the casket before the platform, amidst a multitude of flowers.

The ceremony was opened by the entrance of the funeral procession into the Auditorium, to the music of Chopin's Funeral March. The casket was placed directly in front of the platform. The Penn State Quartette then very beautifully sang "Abide With Me". The college Chaplain, Rev. Reed, then read a portion of the scriptures. Rev. Martin then pronounced the prayer for the day, in which he made impressive reference to our deceased friend.

President Sparks gave a most striking address in which he touched upon different phases of Professor Buckhout's life and upon his chief characteristics. The president's oration must have touched every heart in the room, because of its simplicity and its beautiful portrayal of the personality of our most honored professor. In closing Dr. Sparks said:—He passed away as no doubt he wished to pass, faithful to his daily task and amidst the home surroundings he loved so well. The gentle elements which prevailed in his birth, and marked his life, attended him in his death. Faithful servitor of the college, devoted scientist, honored teacher, beloved friend—farewell.

During the Quartette's next song, the casket was rolled out into the lobby where it was placed, so that all who might wish, could have the opportunity of one last look at Dr. Buckhout. When Dr. Holmes had pronounced the benediction, the people present slowly marched out to the music of the funeral march, to view for the last time their beloved friend. After this touching and impressive ceremony, the body was taken to the cemetery, accompanied by the relatives of the deceased.

Once more we express our deepest regret at the death of Dr. Buckhout, for it is only too evident that this irreparable loss to the college will long be felt by both faculty and students.

Y. M. C. A. Course.

Next Saturday evening Dec. 14, we shall have with us in the Auditorium The Gales, who will entertain with songs and stories of the red men. As a large daily paper sets forth: "Both Mr. and Mrs. Gale appear as Indians—in beautiful costumes—Mrs. Gale appearing in several different costumes, representing various tribes of Indians. No words or pictures can adequately set forth the charm of an entertainment that is unique and picturesque, with a combination of lecture, story, song, and instrumental music, unlike everything else on the platform. Seats on sale at Y. M. C. A. Office.

Inter-Class Wrestling Meet.

If one may judge from interest and enthusiasm shown daily by our wrestling squad, in their daily grappling on the mats, the inter-class wrestling meet, which will be held Friday evening, Dec. 13th, will be beyond doubt, the best exhibition of class wrestling ever held in the Armory.

All men who have made their class wrestling teams during any year of their college course are eligible, together with the best wrestlers in the college who may not have been members of their class teams.

The object of this meet is to increase interest in wrestling, get a line on the best men and to help develop men for future varsity service.

All contestants will be required to weigh in and draw for place Thursday evening, Dec. 12 from 7 to 9 p. m.

Owing to the expense of starting the season, and for the purchasing of necessary equipment an admission fee of 10 cents will be charged. Don't let that stop you, fellows. Remember that wrestling is self supporting and by looking back on former contests of this kind held here, we are led to believe that this one will be worth all it costs.

Letter of Condolence.

Whereas, it has pleased God in His infinite wisdom to call from this life the father of our classmate, Walter H. Boyce, be it resolved that we, the class of 1915 of The Pennsylvania State College, extend our deepest sympathy to our classmate and his relatives in their bereavement.

Furthermore, let it be resolved that these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of the class and published in the Penn State Collegian.

And furthermore, let it be resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to the family.
