THE SEVENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Penn State Experiences Difficulty in Defeating Allegheny. Binder Plays an Exceptionally Efficient Offensive Game. Final Score 21 to 17.

The Allegheny College basketball five met its second defeat of the season on the Armory floor last Saturday night in a close and exciting game. Allegheny had previously lost only to the Oberlin team in an extra five-minute period game. In Saturday's contest, Penn State made no substitutions, and for Allegheny. Thomas was replaced by Ramsey after the former had been disqualified for four personal fouls. Allegheny failed to secure a field goal during the first half, but her captain shot five fouls, while Penn State ended the half with nine points to her credit. Several times the students were wild with enthusiasm and rose to their feet. The cheering was excellent but more care should be exercised in passing remarks when a member of an opposing team is shooting fouls. Between halves there was a dispute concerning the interpretation of the rules and Penn State agreed to follow Allegheny's wishes. This resulted in the disqualification of Thomas in the second half for four personal fouls.

Captain Hartz started the point scoring with a field goal early in the game, and from then on he and Binder did the scoring for the locals until Mauthe caged the ball near the close of the game. "Billy" Binder, the little forward, was everywhere on the floor and scored five goals from field in addition to five foul goals. Hay excelled in intercepting the opponent's passes. Captain Hartz played a hard and consistent game against Captain Hawk of Allegheny while Nichols, one of the forwards for the Meadville Collegians played a fast game securing three field goals.

The victory over Allegheny was well earned and gives Penn State increased prestige as Allegheny is rated high in basketball circles.

The line-up:

STUDENT SUFFRAGE.

Dr. P. O. Ray Drafts a Bill to Allow Students to Vote.

On every November election day, probably no wish is more intense with the student, than to cast his ballot one way or another. A comparatively small number of men are able to satisfy this desire; but the greater part of the men have to forego the privileges of citizenship, on account of the present election laws.

This matter has aroused considerable interest of late, as might be illustrated by the vigorous campaign recently instigated in New York State. Dr. P. O. Ray, head of the Political Science department at Penn State, has become so interested in the problem, that he has drafted a bill, which if passed will solve the existing difficulties.

This document is a proposed amendment to the present election laws of Pennsylvania. It provides that any person, lawfully entitled to a vote in a certain election district shall be able to cast his ballot, while outside of this particular district, providing that he lives up to certain provisions. Such a person if properly registered, may present himself to the judge of elections in another district and there sign an affidavit. Then he shall be provided with a regular ballot, which shall be sent with the affidavit to the prothonotary of his own county. The prothonotary shall retain the ballot and shall eventually add its decision to the regular ballot sheet.

It is clear that such a provision, if passed, would provide for the student and the traveling man, and would allow them to take advantage of their citizen's privileges. Space will not permit a detailed discussion of this matter, but it should at once appear evident that the bill will be of vital consequence to the student.

Every man should make it a point to interest himself in this subject, especially so as the measure will probably be presented to the legislature at this session. The Penn State Civic Club is working strong for the progressive movement, and with the co-operation of the student body, something at least should be accomplished.

Pennsylvania college papers are urged to take up this matter, and all Pennsylvania students and traveling men are called upon to support the movement.

The county clubs at this college, especially, can do efficient work by communicating with local boards of trade and representatives.

THE COMING CONCERT

Assurance of an Interesting Program—Athletic Demonstration.

All students should note the time and place of the coming glee club concert—in the Auditorium, on Friday evening, February 14, at eight o'clock. The nature of the program and the time and care devoted by the club to rehearsals insure a delightful evening's entertainment.

The wrestling match between Toronto and Penn State will take place on the following night, and if matters can be arranged, the concert on Friday night will be attended by both teams. The period of time between the first and second parts of the program will be given over to the student body and the athletic teams representing two great nations—a fitting tribute to our visitors and an acknowledgment of our ever broadening intercollegiate relations.

It is already well known that the proceeds of this concert will be used to help defray the expenses of the western trip. To encourage student support, a very low price of admission will be charged to them; this fact and the knowledge of the purpose to which one contributes should insure a crowded house.

General reserved seat sale at Co-op Wednesday night at seven; student sale Thursday at seven.

During his present trip to western colleges, Dean Holmes will speak at Universities of Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Wisconsin and also at the Iowa State College.

SERVICE CAMPAIGN A BIG SUCCESS

Many Prominent Men Here As Speakers and Advice Givers Much Good Accomplished.

It would be of no avail to attempt to cover the ground of the whole "Service" campaign, which was instituted by the Y. M. C. A. in the past week, as we take it for granted that the majority of the Penn State students have been so actively engaged as to know all of the facts. It is however befitting to say that the campaign was extremely successful, and that it was one of the most distinct and unique enterprises ever attempted at this institution.

Such men as Graham Taylor clearly demonstrated how the thinking men of the country can better economic and social conditions, by performing acts of service—that is by educating the ignorant, by bettering social conditions, and by influencing beneficial legislation. The religious standpoint was taken up, but this consideration differed so appreciably from the methods of some of the ancient reformers, that it was probably better understood by the average man. The leaders in this movement emphasized the application of Christian principles in a practical manner.

Especially in the conference work, was an opportunity granted to men to discuss questions with some of the most expert sociologists and progressive reformers along certain branches of humanitarian lines. Not alone were these men able to clear up doubts in their minds regarding certain obscurities, but they were also led to take a more definite and decisive attitude concerning some of the questions of the day.

This active campaign especially brought out the pertinent question of immigration, and one with which every college man should concern himself. As some would have it, the present inflow of emigrants is going to seriously affect the national spirit of the country. In this campaign it was demonstrated that if we are to permit these foreign people to come to our shores, it will be our duty to instruct them and to make them conceive our national spirit and our mode of thinking. Whether this can be accomplished is yet to be determined, but nevertheless as conditions are at present, the idea of service, as set forth, is certainly a most admirable project.

To the Y. M. C. A. of this institution, which had assumed the burden of the organization of this movement, especial credit is due. It is no easy task to arrange schedules and conferences, and the same to provide for the visitors, and from the experience behind us, we can readily judge, that these requisites were performed with aforethought and practicability. Considering the success of this campaign, and of the good advice and counsel administered to the student, it is to be hoped that Penn State will have the privilege in future years, to witness more such events.

Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Altoona will be the center of a Laymen's Missionary Movement to be held February 23, 24 and 25. Some of the most prominent speakers and leaders of America will attend this convention. Mr. J. Campbell will have charge.

McGILL DEFEATED

Blue and White Matmen Win Opening Meet of the Season.

Penn State opened the wrestling season by defeating McGill University of Montreal Canada, on Friday evening in an interesting meet. The largest crowd that ever witnessed a meet on the local floor turned out to see the first meet of the season. The meet was held under a compromise of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rules and those of the Eastern United States Intercollegiate League. If a fall were obtained within the nine minute limit, the contestants were to begin again and wrestle to the end of the nine minute period unless the same man succeeded in winning a second fall. If his opponent secured a fall an extra three minute bout was to be called for after the regular succeeding bout had been wrestled. Captain Shollenberger and Lamb distinguished themselves by being the only men that were able to secure two falls within the time limit.

The meet opened with the bout of the 115 pound class. Baird a new man for Penn State, made a good showing but lost on decision to Ewart of McGill. Mcendenhall and Audette next put up one of the most interesting bouts of the evening, the latter showing himself to be one of the best men that has ever visited Penn State in the 125 pound class. McGill again won on decision.

Kirk another new man on the Blue and White team won the first point for his team by pinning Capt. Hughes to the mat soon after the bout started, but he could do nothing more than win a decision.

Fulkman and Ford put up one of the best exhibitions of the evening, the former securing the first fall of the meet with a combination arm lock and half nelson hold.

Captain Shollenberger made short work of his bouts in the 158 pound class. He secured the first fall in less than 3 minutes and followed it with a second in 17 seconds.

Lamb showed to advantage in the heavy weight class and secured two falls in a little over 6 minutes.
