AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

There is an increasing demand at this season of the year for the services of members of the agricultural faculty in judging stock at the various shows being held in the state. Doctor H. H. Havner served as judge at the DuBois fair, Professor T. I. Mairs attended a Grange fair at Turtle Point, where he delivered a lecture and also judged the stock, D. E. Warner judged the poultry at the St. Mary's fair and Professor F. S. Putney made the address at the opening of the new fair grounds at the same place.

The Crab Apple Club, in co-operation with the Department of Horticulture, will hold their Fourth Annual Fruit Show on Pennsylvania Day, November 7. The fruit will be displayed in the assembly room of the Agricultural building. Students, farmers and fruit growers are invited to exhibit apples, pears, quinces and nuts; making plate, box or barrel entries. Ribbons will be awarded to each entry. Those who desire to exhibit should apply to Mr. H. K. Plank, chairman, or Professor F. N. Fagan for entry blank and further instructions.

Professor M. S. McDowell represented the college at a meeting of the Agricultural Federation of Pennsylvania last week and was elected secretary and treasurer.

Professor T. I. Mairs will discuss a paper on "The Object and Scope of Agriculture in the High School" at a meeting of the American Association for improvement of Agricultural Teaching to be held in Washington, D. C., November 11.

The cottage beyond the Botanical gardens, recently occupied by Mrs. Atherton, will be removed to the experimental farms and remodeled into a dairyman's residence. The removal makes way for the improvement of that part of the campus according to the plans of Mr. Lowrie, the college landscape architect.

A model stone quarry as part of the equipment of Highway Engineering is being opened on College avenue near the lower end of the experimental farm. It will be partly enclosed so that it may be operated during the winter. The material will be used on the campus roadways next year.

Interclass Wrestling.

With the election, within the past two weeks, of the sophomore and freshman wrestling managers, preparation for the big interclass match has begun in earnest. Both managers are doing their best to get affairs into some sort of shape; but material is still wanting. In the sophomore camp, Chambers, Brown, Breneiser, Williams and Nobel are showing up particularly well and under the coaching of Jones, Billy Park and Physical Director Lewis, promise good results. Manager Baird, however, reports a lack of heavyweights. There is still room on the lighter weight list; but the call is made especially strong for weights above 158. The big men owe it to themselves and to their class to get out on the mat and start working.

The freshman Manager Bierer, seems to be getting along fairly well. The freshmen who have come out, show the right spirit, and the sooner their classmates fall in line, the better. The men of course are all new, and it is impossible to say so early in the season just who is doing best, or is most likely to get a position on the class team. Sophomores report, Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights; freshmen Tuesday and Thursday. All men possible of both classes should turn out; everyone will be given a fair chance to make good.

Interest at Wash-Jeff.

J. M. McKee '10, County Agriculturist at Washington, Pa., writes: "Interest is great here in the Penn State-W. and J. game on the 18th. On the advertising board which the college athletic authorities use they have pasted up in big letters, "October 18," without any further explanation. But every one seems to know what it means. Reports here indicate that W. and J. has a lot of splendid material, so that they will have a good team; which to my mind is all the better, for that is the kind Penn State wants to meet."

A German Lecture.

Professor Fehr, of the German department, will give a lantern slide lecture in the auditorium, Saturday, October 18, 8 p. m. The subject is "The Wilhelm Tell Country". The evening will be under the auspices of the Deutscher Verein. All are invited.

THE CHILDREN'S PARTY

where Harvey's ice cream is served is bound to be a success. When a good big dish of it is placed on the table the youngsters will become silent at once—the silence of happiest anticipation. And when it is portioned out just watch the faces as they take each spoonful. They'll look as if they thought they were in heaven.
