

Noteworthy Reform.

The junior class at Franklin and Marshall College has, it is hoped, solved many problems by adopting an elaborate constitution, in which the object of the class organization is stated to be "to bring the members into an organized relation; to provide a system of fundamental principles of action; to cultivate friendship, and to foster class and college spirit."

The class hopes by this action to regulate its affairs in a more methodical way. Strict financial regulations are to be enforced as to paying of dues, assessments, and the like, no member being allowed to participate in elections or transactions of the class if he is deficient in dues.

The question of finances is doubtless the greatest problem which confronts a class, and it has been apparent that class finances can be kept in healthy condition only by enforcement of strict rules.

According to a "proposed schedule" for Harvard's 1914 eleven, stated to be pending by yesterday's Philadelphia Press, Penn State is to be the Crimson's opponent at Cambridge on October 24.

1914 A Happy New Year 1914

"Look out, and not in; look up and not down; look forward and not back; and lend a hand."

There's a good motto for all of us for the New Year. We're not sure that the quotation is exactly correct; but we've got the general idea there; Edward Everett Hale said it.

It's a good motto for men in business; for women in the home or in business, for all of us in all our relations to each other. We're trying to carry out that idea in this clothing business. It is shown by having here the most forward, upward, outward looking clothes made; the best and most advanced styles; by placing before you only merchandise of a dependable, meritorious kind and selling it at moderate prices. Clothes that will help a man look and feel like that motto.

We are constantly striving to better our service to you—that we may lend a hand in the advancement of dress and true economy.
