A Big Year's Work
More than one million citizens of this state during the last year received help in one way or another through the Pennsylvania State college, according to estimates announced by President Sparks in his report to the legislature, which was presented at the annual meeting of the board of trustees over which Governor Brumbaugh presided.

The report indicated the following points
"There are 3,385 students attending the college this year. In addition to these regular students 900 farmers and road supervisors attended sessions at the college one week between Christmas and New Year's.

"In its extension work the college has enrolled over 5,000 persons in different parts of the commonwealth who are being instructed by correspondence in various courses in agriculture, home economics, engineering and education. Resident agricultural advisers are now maintained in 14 counties of the state. Night and apprentice schools were conducted in 44 cities and towns, with an attendance of 3,150. Over 500 educational meetings were held in different parts of the state with a total attendance of about 60,000.

"It is estimated that 600,000 people saw the agricultural 'safety first' and educational exhibits shown in various places during the year. Nearly 50,000 persons received the various bulletins issued by the college and 400 state newspapers were given a semi-monthly service of scientific news."

Mid-Year Convocation

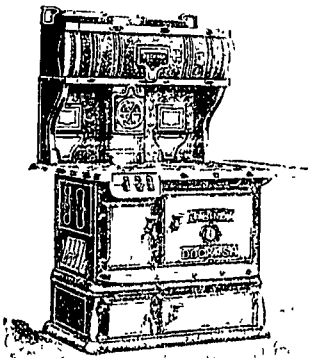

The mid-year convocation was held in the Auditorium on Monday morning and the exercises were very instructive and very interesting. The address of the day was made by Prof. Ezra T. Franklin, of Asbury college, and was of a very practical nature. The speaker dwelt on the need of the college student to concentrate his mind upon his work and he discussed his theme with a clearness and vividness of expression that sent the message home to every man.

Immediately following the address the following degrees were granted:

Master of arts—John Laimbeer Peckham.
Bachelor of arts—Charles Schwab Fluke, Everett Stirling Ross.
Bachelor of science—Walter Reilly Wilson, Edward Darlington, Lowell Kirk Hays, M. James McCleary, Theodore Clinton McIlvaine, John Samuel Deffler, Donald Rankin.

A new ruling of the faculty at Wesleyan makes it possible for a student who has failed in the preparation of his work for class, to go to recitations, report himself unprepared, and be charged only with half a cut.
