added while W. and J. were scoring one point. The half ended with the score at 19 to 6. The pace set by the State team is not even indicated by the score, for, in the greater part of the half the ball was in W. and J. Territory.

W. and J. started the second half with a rush and reduced the State margin to eight points but State braced and seemed content to hold the margin of victory at about 12 points. By substitutions Capt. Goodwin hoped to turn the tide but found it impossible.

McPherson and Goodwin played the best game for W. and J. The team work and all around play of Park's team made it impossible to pick out any particular star. Wagner when substituted for Blakslee played well.

The line up follows:

Penn State	W. & J.
Blakslee	Fisher
Park Capt.	Capt. Goodwin
Jester	McCreight
Walton	Peelor
Wilson	McPherson

Field goals, Blakslee 3, Wagner, Jester 4, Walton 2, Fisher 2, Goodwin, Peelor, McPherson.

Foul goals Park 6 in 17, McPherson 9 in 15.

MIDDIES CAPTURE FIRST MEET

Superior Aggressiveness Decides Victory.

For the second time in six years, the Midshipmen succeeded in wresting victory from the Penn State matmen. It was the initial contest for each team, and the strongest lineup appeared in each class, but the more marked aggressiveness on the part of the Middies gave them the meet by a good margin.

Only one fall was registered, and that by the Navy, while extra periods were necessary to decide three other bouts; but in spite of this fact, the team was out-fought, and the aggressiveness which has characterized our teams of the past was absent, save in the first bout of the lightweights. The Navy is coached and uses a style identical with that taught here, so that defeat came in on our game, and quite unexpectedly. Four men on each team had taken part in the meet of last year when victory rested with us.

In the first bout, Long was opposed by Grant of the Navy, who wrestled in his first varsity meet. At no time was our point winner of last year out-generated, while on the other hand, Grant had great difficulty to save himself from being thrown. At the end of nine minutes, Long was given the decision and started Penn State's scoring with four points, Wyatt, who was thrown by Crockett of last year's team, met a new man in Brown. After one minute of work from the stand, Wyatt rushed Brown, throwing him to the mat, and at the same time falling into a neck and body hold from which Brown was unable to free himself. In two minutes, 20 seconds, his shoulders were pinned to the mat.

In the 135 pound class, Kirk went nine minutes with his opponent from whom he got a decision, last year, and the result was a draw. In an extra three minutes, Hoops by exhibition of great strength and aggressiveness, was successful in gaining four points on decision over him.

Pickett and Jones were both new men for the 145 pound weight. In the first nine minutes, it seemed likely that the advantage was again with the Midshipmen, but a draw was given and in the final minute of the extra period, Pickett succeeded in going on top, and retained his position with the reward of a decision.

Yerger's opponent of last year repeated his past history, and in nine minutes, gained a clear decision. Stecker met Sayre's opponent of last year and was unable to recover from a bad leg hold, losing on decision.

The big surprise came in the final bout when Captain Lamb was forced to draw with his lighter opponent, T. W. Harrison. Harrison had played end on the football team, but had never taken part in a wrestling meet previously. In 15 minutes, he was able to stay Lamb's attacks, so that at no time were the men off their feet, and a decision was not possible. The Navy rooters were well pleased to see what at first would have seemed a sure fall against them, turn to an even break with two points for either team. The final score was 19 points for the Navy and 10 for State.

Summary:

Long, State; decision over Grant, Navy—9 minutes.

Wyatt, Navy; fall from Brown, Penn State—2 minutes 20 seconds.

Hoopes, Navy; decision over Kirk—12 minutes.

Broadfoot, Navy; decision over Yerger—9 minutes.

Ward, Navy; decision over Stecker—9 minutes.

Lamb, State; draw with Harrison—15 minutes.

J. Grumbling, '14, is back this semester and is assisting "Doc" Lewis in getting the men primed for the Penn meet; also, "Billy" Park, '13, has been working with the lightweight men to help perfect their knowledge of the game.

To Orators and Essayists

Among the advances of this college along literary lines is the increasing interest in oratory and journalism. In the movement is the local Prohibition League which will hold its annual oratorical contest the week before Easter vacation. The subject, which will relate to some phase of the liquor problem, is not otherwise restricted. Prizes are offered and the winner of the home contest competes for state honors at Dickinson, April 16. All who are interested are urged to begin preparations at once. We claimed second honors in the state last year. We can do better this year.

For essays on "The Relation of Individual Total Abstinence to the Prosperity of the Nation," the W. C. T. U. offers very tempting prizes. There are steps leading to state honors here also. This opportunity should appeal to those who can write but not speak forcefully.
