"Carefully compiled statistics show that the men entering college young are on the average better, both in their studies and their conduct. On the whole they are the more intelligent and industrious youths; and this appears in the examination for entrance as well as in college work."—President Lowell of Harvard.

"Paradise Prison", a comedy to be produced by the Mask and Wig club, was written by a former student. The play was awarded the prize of $200 offered by the students' dramatic associations for the best production submitted.

Professor Agee has recently been giving a series of lectures at Rutgers college, on rural life problems.

During the current school year six Kansas colleges have adopted the system of simplified spelling. There are now 67 schools in all with this plan in use; and resolutions have been passed asking publishers to adopt the system.

At Lehigh the honor system is governed by 14 students who have full control of student discipline.

The oldest college book that is known today was recently found by Professor Langdon of Oxford. It is a small tablet of clay and was written probably 4,200 years ago.

University of Pittsburgh is considering the honor system.

The Sophomores at Stevens have a "get together" period during one of the noon hours. A sort of "Coffee house gathering of Ye Olden Days" it appears to be.

President Hibben of Princeton opposes paid coaches for college athletic teams.

Cranston, '15, will represent State in the annual oratorical contest conducted by the Pennsylvania Arbitration and Peace society. The contest will probably be held at Juniata college about the middle of April. University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburg, Penn State, Juniata, Bucknell, and St. Joseph's college will be represented.
