Schlingrove Eleven Under New Coach Fighting for Place on Football Map

The opening conflict of the 1916 football season has been timed for Saturday afternoon, Sept. 23, at which time coach Harlow's huskies will stake up against the eleven from Susquehanna University. The contest is to be staged on the new field at 10 p. m.

This year the Susquehanna team is being coached for the first time by Athletic Director Winward, a former grad mate of the Schlingrove who is planning the present season with a record of ten years of successful coaching. During the last four years he has been head coach at the University of Maine, where he has turned out some phenomenal teams. The return of the old grad has instilled all manner of pep and ginger into the Schlingrove candidates and they may be expected to put up a game fight in their clash with the Penn State warriors.

Winward at the outset of the season has four veterans to serve as a foundation for his football machine. In addition he has three of last year's candidates and two good New England players who matriculated at the university this fall. The men in question are Callahan, of Concord, N. H., and Kirk, formerly quarterback on the University of Maine eleven. With these men as a nucleus Winward expects to round out from the new material a team which will establish beyond all doubt Susquehanna's right to a place on the football map.

NEW HEAD OF DAIRY DEPT. SUCCEEDS PROF. C. W. LARSON

Professor Fred Rasmussen has been appointed Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the Pennsylvania State College, succeeding Professor C. W. Larson, resigned.

Professor Rasmussen was graduated from the Iowa State College in 1905, with the degree of bachelor of science in agriculture. Following graduation he went to Purdue university as assistant in dairy instruction. While at Purdue, Professor Rasmussen had charge of the college troupe also. In 1910 he returned to his alma mater as assistant professor of dairy husbandry and one year later he was called to the Pennsylvania State College as professor of dairy husbandry, which position he left to take up his work at the Pennsylvania State College.

Besides his experience at the various institutions with which he has been connected, Professor Rasmussen has traveled largely in Europe, where he has made a study of dairying conditions in Denmark, Germany, Bavaria, Switzerland, Holland, Norway and Sweden. During the past few years, also, he has specialized largely in dairy economics in connection with which work he has issued a number of bulletins and pamphlets. During the summer of 1917, Professor Rasmussen spent four months abroad studying cattle breeding associations as a special representative of the United States Department of Agriculture. The results of this study were later incorporated in bulletin form.

Professor Rasmussen began work at State College about Sept. 18.

PENN STATE APPOINTS NEW HEAD OF HORTICULTURE

Dr. W. S. Fletcher, director of the Virginia Agriculture Experimental Station, has been appointed professor of horticulture at the Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture and Experiment Station, the appointment to take effect September 1.

Dr. Fletcher graduated from the Massachusetts Agricultural College in 1898. Graduate work for the next three years at Cornell university, earned him the degree of master of science and doctor of philosophy. Following his graduate work Dr. Fletcher served for three years as professor of horticulture at the Washington State College. After leaving Washington he was for five years assistant professor of extension teaching at Cornell university. This work he left to go to the Michigan agricultural college as professor of horticulture. After three years of service with the Michigan institution Dr. Fletcher went to the Virginia Experiment Station as director, which office he has administered for the past six years.

As an author Dr. Fletcher has written several books and numerous bulletins. At present he is president of the Virginia Horticultural Society.

Dr. Fletcher's record speaks for itself and his appointment to Penn State is a matter of no small satisfaction to those interested in the development of horticulture in Pennsylvania.

NUMBER OF APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TOTALS 827

The number of applications, received by the registrar, for admission to this year's freshman class exceeded the records of all former years. Last year there were 812 applications. It is to be noted that there are 55 boys who have been elected this year from outside the state, last year's ruling against the admission of persons residing outside the state having been annulled. The memoranda of candidates for admission to the freshman class follows—

Applicants with full standing	1915	1916
Applicants with 13 or 13 1/2 credit units	734	750
Admitted with a deficiency	78	57
Girls admitted with full standing	82	83
Boys admitted from outside state	55	55

SENIOR MEMORIAL TO BE FINISHED BY NOVEMBER

The senior memorial gate which is now in the course of construction will be finished by the first of November according to the men in charge. Due to the inability of the contractors to secure masons, the work was greatly hindered this summer. The old posts which were at the front entrance to the campus were carefully taken down and stored so that if needed in the future they may be easily accessible for use. The lamps which were presented to the college by the class of 1918 in their freshman year adorn the new gateway when finished. The new gateway will furnish a very pleasing entrance to the college grounds.

WILL RECLAIM TIMBER LANDS

New Appointments Have Been Made In Agricultural Extension Work

The agricultural extension work under the direction of Professor M. S. McDowell and his associates has continued during the summer and several new ideas of work have been introduced into the courses of the department which will continue as usual for the coming year with several new features of which a field day at Showstow, Pa., will be the most important. At this time experiments have been progressing for several years with the idea of reclaiming abandoned farm lands and cut over timber sections by means of fertilizers. The fertilizers and methods used there are of interest to the farmers and for this reason the men have been invited to inspect the results.

The following appointments have been made for the coming year. Mr. C. H. Hadley has been selected as the extension entomologist and will tour the state to advance the knowledge of the farmers in regard to insect life and problems. Mr. J. I. Knaedel will have charge of the poultry extension and Mr. N. Schmetz will travel as the extension agronomist. Dr. J. H. Hanover, late of the faculty here, has been detailed to the animal husbandry work in the extension department and will take up his new work this fall. Dr. Hanover was in this same line of teaching last year in college.

Mr. Clemens of the faculty has taken up his work among the young people of the rural districts in regard to outdoor work and Miss M. Donald and Miss Newcomb have been busy demonstrating canning operations to the house wives of the state. The tour of the two ladies was arranged and advertised by the county representative of the respective districts as are all such tours and was unusually successful since they accomplished wonders in their efforts to teach the women new and efficient methods of canning their products.

The usual agricultural exhibits are now going the round of county fairs. There are two of these now in circulation which contain all records, information, and models of the experimental and educational work being done by the Agricultural school.

The governor has become interested in this extension idea and is undertaking three tours, which are now under way in which he will attempt to become better acquainted with the agricultural conditions of the state with the producers. One of these trips brought the governor to State College last Wednesday for a short time. These campaigns last for three days each and during that time the governor is accompanied by several men of our faculty, including Denn Watts and Professor McDowell.

CASH GOING EAST?

Well, before it all disappears, make sure that you have added down ten bits for your subscription to the Collegian for this year. Don't argue with our business representative when he calls for your $1.25 before Oct. 15, but come across with it and a happy smile, for it aids in the support of college activities. After that date it will cost you $1.50. If you are not interviewed personally, call at the Collegian Business Office in Metzger's store.

SAMOSET CHOCOLATES

Chief of Them All

The Line By Which Competitors Say Just As Good

We have decided after trying out a number of different lines to tie our cart to SAMOSET. Unquestionably the finest line of Chocolates we have ever seen. We will carry this complete line in bulk and packages during the present college year, and we can assure you that we would not do this if we did not know that it is the line par excellence
