

CLASS FINANCES ARE EXPLAINED TO FRESHMEN

Important Class Meeting Held to Introduce Budget System—New Class Yell is Adopted.

A very important meeting of the freshmen class was held in old chapel last Friday night to discuss the class financial situation.

Fowler explained the Freshmen budget, which is to be paid to the 1918 class treasurer.

The 1920 men were not satisfied with their original yell, so a new one was adopted.

As provided for in the by-laws of the inter-class constitution under Article V, Section 3, (f) the following is printed here concerning the organization of the Freshman class.

Art V, Sec 3. (a) The President of the Junior class shall be in charge of the organization of the Freshman class.

(b) The President shall select a committee of five members to serve until the election of permanent officers.

(c) Each Trial President, serving in alphabetical order, shall be given the second week of the year to select his officers.

(d) The President shall be elected the second week of the year by the Freshmen class.

(e) Rules governing and providing for the election of officers shall be the same as those applying to this matter in the Sophomore, Junior and Senior years.

(f) The above method of procedure shall be explained to the Freshmen class at its first meeting.

(g) The above method of procedure shall be explained to the Freshmen class at its first meeting.

(h) The above method of procedure shall be explained to the Freshmen class at its first meeting.

(i) The above method of procedure shall be explained to the Freshmen class at its first meeting.

Who's Who in the Faculty

EDWIN ERLE SPARKS, Ph. D., LL. D.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following sketch of President Sparks is the first of a series of similar articles to appear weekly in the Collegian.

Dr. Sparks' life contains much that is unknown to students of the Penn State.

EDWIN ERLE SPARKS, Ph. D., LL. D., was born in 1860, in Licking county, Ohio.

At the age of 10 he entered the Ohio Wesleyan University, where he was a student during the first year of his preparatory course.

During his college days his mind was influenced by the excellent work of Professor F. Schott, professor of history at the college.

That same year he was made principal of the preparatory department of the Penn State College.

He then returned to the University of Chicago, where he was appointed to a position in the department of history.

In 1900 the university conferred the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, and shortly thereafter he was promoted to the full professorial rank.

He has written a number of books, including "The Expansion of the American People," "The Men Who Made the Nation," "Formative Incidents in American Diplomacy," "The United States of America," "The American People," "The Capture of William Johnston," "The National Development from 1877 to 1885," "The American People," "The American People," "The American People."

During this period he was Dean of the University College, organized at the University of Chicago for the instruction of teachers in the city schools.

Dr. Sparks is a member of a number of historical organizations, notably the American Historical Society, the American Academy of Political Science, the American Civics Association, the American Archives Commission, a director of the Illinois Historical Society, and a corresponding member of the Chicago Historical Society.

In 1907 when the trustees of Penn State were looking for a man competent, by reason of personal qualities, experience and recognized standing as an expert in the field of the history of the State, they turned their attention to Dr. Sparks.

He has been a member of the Penn State since his inauguration in 1907.

State, has developed the institution far beyond the most remote dreams of any member of the board at the time he was chosen to lead her.

The story of President Sparks' life since he came to Penn State is a very long one in itself.

As president of this college, Dr. Sparks has delivered an average of fifty lectures each year of the eight he has been here.

Another one down with six games still to go. The real test is yet to come, against Penn, Lehigh and Pitt.

How many are going on that special train to Philadelphia? Are YOU going to see the game?

Parish is playing a great game at guard. He is breaking up plays before they even get started.

Beck and Clark were both dazed during the game. Clark didn't want to leave the game and "Bill" Martin had to lead him off the field.

Who will be the man to score a touchdown on the kick-off against Penn? The slippery field last Saturday handicapped Robb and Ewing to some extent. They fell several times.

Cubbage had kicked 13 successive goals from touchdown before he missed. His attempts at field goals, however, were not very successful.

Culac is a great defensive back, but he could not gain a thing through the State line. He is a lucky chap.

Beck made a good catch of the forward pass that he received. He caught the ball just as it was about to hit the ground.

MASS MEETING A BIG SUCCESS

Big Crowd Overflows Armory in First Mass Meeting of the Year

Songs, yells, speeches and the old State spirit marked the first mass meeting of the football season last Friday night.

The speeches from Captain Clark, "Doc" Hartz, Morris, Gatzert, O'Donnell, "Doc" Very, Andy, Lytle and Manager Hoffman were greeted by the usual big yells.

On the day of the Bucknell-State game the Alumni of Penn State in twelve cities throughout the country gathered together for the first "Booster Day" Banquet.

From forty to fifty alumni present, and at Pittsburgh in the Fort Pitt Hotel there was a large and enthusiastic gathering.

From the efforts of Ray Smith and other members of the Alumni, a list of each of the gatherings of about two hundred and fifty words describing the feature plays of the game.

Bob Folwell is looking for a hard game with State, as is evidenced in the following statement which appeared recently under his name.

"The first severe test to my mind, will be the State College game. State has one of the strongest teams in America, and as always they are 'pointing' the team at all future cost, to whip us in the game with State we have many old scars to repair.

"I am proud with the Penn team. In victory or defeat Pennsylvania men will be satisfied if I am satisfied, the undergraduates are going to back the team, and feel glad when the yell is drawn at the end of 1916 that they helped the team stem the battles."

Captain Matthews, of the Red and Blue team, will lead the best line Penn has had in many years, this season.
