The Penn State Freshman eleven played a neat trick on the Pitt yearlings last Saturday at Forbes field, when they defeated the freshmen of that University 7-0, using some of Glen Warner's own plays as the nucleus of their attack. The formation used when Wolfe made a brilliant run for 77 yards, placing the ball on the Pitt Freshies' three yard line, was nothing more than one of Warner's plays adopted by Coach Hermann. This winning punch was delivered early in the first quarter before the Pitt team had really gotten under way, and Wolfe was largely responsible for the victory, for on the next play Dunbar was hurled across the line for the first and only touchdown.

But, from here on, the sailing was not so easy and uneventful for the Freshmen since the Pittsburgh team began to wake up and make things warm. The remainder of the contest showed that the opposing teams were fairly well matched and several times it seemed certain that the Biroks City town would hat Joseph. The State freshmen were saved once by pure luck, when time was called, and three times again by wrapping their toes about the goal line and fighting every inch until they took the pigskin on downs.
