ENGINEERS SHOULD IMPROVE ENGLISH

So Says Michigan Professor Dean Sackett Would Have More Argumentation

The inability of the average American student in engineering to express his ideas in clear and correct English formed one of the main topics of discussion at a recent joint session held in the city of New York by the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, the National Highway Chamber of Commerce and Section "D" of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

When interviewed by a representative of the Collegian and informed of Professor Hilde's ideas with regard to additional instruction in English for engineering students, Dean Sackett, head of the engineering school at Penn State, had the following to say on the subject.

"Beyond all question every student in engineering needs thorough drill in writing and a type of public speaking which is adapted to his technical needs. The latter subject in particular should receive special attention and the student who intends to make engineering his profession should be given careful training in presenting arguments in support of engineering propositions.

All-College Play Rounds Into Form

Plans for Staging and Costuming of "The Piper" Are Extensive

Rehearsals for "The Piper," a play which will be produced about the third week in February, under the auspices of the combined Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are well under way, and the characters are quickly rounding into shape under the direction of Miss M. A. Dunham. This production is an all-college play and the promoters hope, through its success, to bring back the good name of the Y. M. C. A. plays which was lost a few years ago.

Dr. Boucke Gives Interesting Talk

Dr. O. F. Boucke last night addressed a large audience in the Auditorium of the Liberal Arts Building with his lecture on "The New Democracy." The old democracy aimed at emancipation from tyranny and self-rule in a political sense by the people, he said. The new democracy is a result of economic and scientific changes during the past one hundred and fifty years, that is, since the period of the revolution. It aims chiefly at the self-development on behalf of society, including the matter of mind over matter and also the protection of all against group-interest, through government control.

After pointing out the numerous existing evils in the present system, Dr. Boucke pointed out that they must be done, first, by efficiency, which includes conservation of energy, fitness, training, and most suitable employment. Second, Personality, which must be built up out of reactions to stimuli about us. It terminates in culture and culture determines personality. Third, sympathy. The test of virtue is not suffering, but service, independent of rewards. Finally sympathy would lead to internationalism and permanent peace and this is the national fruit of a true democracy.

itors and Blaseon added another Wagner replaced Laubach. Five successive goals by the Dartmouth players, and three by the State men, added to three foul goals by Blaseon, made the stands take notice. But State drew rapidly away on a field goal by Adam, two by Wagner and two points on a double foul by Blakeslee, making the final score 44 to 22. The line-up:

The Syracuse Game

The Syracuse game started with a rush as had been expected. Adams got the tip off and State had a chance at the basket but failed. Syracuse carried the ball to their end of the floor but also failed to cage the sphere. On a foul, Crisp scored the first point of the game for Syracuse. Adam failed on the second tip-off, but after some fast work Wilson got a basket. Soon afterwards Blakeslee shot a foul and Laubach caged a long shot. Score 6-1. Schwartz got a long basket from mid-floor and another basket for Syracuse tied the score at five. Adam broke the tie by caging a hard shot. Osman lost a good chance to tie the score when he failed at an easy attempt. Two fouls were shot for State but Syracuse was not to be daunted, and shot a basket tying the score at nine points. Adam again broke the tie with a basket, but Syracuse gained another point on a foul, and yet another just as a clever shot for State hit Syracuse was not to be daunted, and shot a basket tying the score at nine points. "GYPSY" SMITH GIVES RARE TREAT IN CHAPEL

A treat was granted to the student body last Sunday morning at the college chapel exercises when "Gypsy" Smith, the evangelist gave a stirring account of the history of his gypsy family's rise in christianity, particularly of his father's advance from the gypsy tent to the pulpit and the foundation of the Salvation Army work in England. Mr. Smith is conducting services in the churches of the borough, and will be here for another fortnight, and will be here for another fortnight, and will be here for another fortnight.
