

THE NEW CONSTITUTION OF STUDENT COUNCIL

The new Student Council constitution which was up before the three upper classes for their approval in Mass Meeting this morning, is the result of many weeks of work on the part of Council members last year. Its adoption by the student government is a step in advance for Penn State, for it clearly outlines the duties of the Council and shows the students what they can expect from this body. There was no opportunity to place the constitution before the students for approval last spring, and for that reason it was done at this time.

The old constitution of the Council was obsolete and in no way was fitting as a means of direction in the Council's business. The new constitution and its by-laws follow:

HOW OFTEN SHOULD MY EYES BE EXAMINED?

The eyes should be examined every year. They do not always change that time but you cannot know whether they do or don't if you do not have them examined. If no change is necessary I will be glad to tell you so. Don't neglect the eyes. They are the most important organ we have, and if you let them go longer than a year without attention you are neglecting them.

Letters From the Front

South Carolina and Georgia. It is now picking time and groups of negroes, scattered here and there, added much to the picturesque of the scene.

The camp is situated about six miles out of the city of Augusta on rather high land. The ground was originally scrub oaks and jack pines with a patch of cotton thrown in to give variety to the landscape. The engineers who had come ahead with a few picked companies of the division had prepared the site in good shape before the troops arrived. The location is apparently healthful and the sanitary arrangements have been well looked after. Water, which has been carefully filtered, has been piped in from the city water works and, in some cases, the soldiers are furnished hot water by considerable mess sergeants. In fact, I believe, we can safely say that the government has done, or is doing, everything possible for the comfort of the men of the United States, primarily and emphatically a nation of peace, is now having serious and difficult problems to face and it will take time to work out all of these problems in a completely satisfactory way. When one sees a large camp like this, he gets an idea of the really remarkable way in which we are preparing to do our part in making the world "safe for democracy."

To Have Real Combat.

All branches of military service are represented here and one can see the various methods used to whip an army into shape. The real game of war is to be played here later in a most realistic way. Preparations are being made for trench attack under protection of barrage, the use of the gas attacks and the use of the bomb. It is understood that real bombs are to be given the men in the final stages of their study, so there are to be lively times ahead.

We Find "State" Men Everywhere.

We find "State" men everywhere and in all ranks from privates to majors. Today I was at mess with Maj. J. H. Andrews of the engineers, a resident of Philadelphia and one of the trustees of the college. Capt. Randolph, also a graduate of "State," belongs to the same regiment. I have been told that there are others, but I have not found them yet. A complete list would be interesting and valuable for future reference.

Boalsburg Troop There

Today the reorganization orders were announced from headquarters and several regiments were assigned with to furnish men for the increase in numbers in new regiments in order to conform to the size of the allied units abroad. This will mean many separations among friends, but the whole matter is treated philosophically, realizing the necessity of war.

The Y. M. C. Here is Well Organized.

The Y. M. C. here is well organized for its great work. The soldiers appreciate the interest taken in their welfare and the buildings are well patronized. The secretaries are efficient and sympathetic, so much so that they are taken into account and the mental, moral, physical and spiritual life has its place in the comprehensive program, while the social life is kept up in all the ministrations.

Brown of last year's senior class in Railway Mechanical Engineering, wrote from England that they had a pleasant trip over with an excitement, and were to go to France in a few days.

R. S. Clark, '17, Mechanical Engineering, enlisted in the Navy, and was assigned to the engine room of the U. S. steamship Aloha. He has made several trips between Philadelphia and abroad.

Prof. E. D. Walker writes from France that he is situated very pleasantly near the seashore, and is enjoying the best of health.

Al B. Richardson, of the Junior Railway Mechanical Engineering class, is in the Supply Division of the Ordnance Department in Washington, where he holds a second lieutenant's commission.

Major Hugo Demer writes that with his corps of four first lieutenants, and several civilian clerks, he has charge of the inspection, cost of manufacture, and reports on the munitions being made by the United States Cartridge Company at Lowell, Mass.

Albert F. Schoeppe is a second lieutenant at Camp Meade, assigned as an intelligence officer at headquarters in the mentioned city. He is with Elmer, Elve, and Petzold as other Penn State men who hold officers' commissions at Camp Meade and at Anliston, Ala.

Pretty Southern Girls.

Camp McClallan, Anliston, Ala., September 20. Just a few lines to let you know I have not forgotten the old crowd. I suppose you are just beginning work by this time, and I wish I could be back for a few days.

I have been having quite a time since I left last May. They worked us very hard at Niagara until August 15th, then gave us a two-week furlough. I then reported to Camp Meade on August 29th. Was assigned to what is known as a Depot Brigade. I will not attempt to explain just what that means. Was at Meade two days when half the brigade was ordered to Camp McClellan. Gray was lucky, or unlucky, whichever you may wish to call it, and missed going by only two names on the list. We left Washington on October 1st on a special train, which arrived fifteen hours late, but which was supposed to make better time.
